INTRODUCTION TO FROM THE RIGHT

Receptive Cognition

This was both a course and a clinic investigating Right Receptive Cognition. The live 5-week course was open only to those with Personality Sun/Earth Right orientation. The perspective Ra gives the Right is their approach to what it means to have a receptive Personality as a learning process.

This course was originally taught in the Spring of 2009. All original illustrations are in the Illustration Library.

Note: To avoid confusion, the words Left and Right are capitalized only when referring to Tone, but not capitalized when referring to things such as correctness.

Lesson One

The Receptive Mind

Hello, and welcome to all of you. I've actually been looking forward to this. It was interesting for me. It wasn't until the Ibiza Event two years—I did a thing where I separated Left and Right. I had one day where my lecture was only filled with those who were on the Left, and the next day it was oriented to the Right. It was a remarkable experience. It was the first time I could really feel something that I had seen and that I had known for a long time.

I'm three parts Left; I'm one part Right. The part of me that's Right is my Personality Nodes. That is the way I look at the world, the way I see things. I've been teaching a long time. I've taught just about every level of school that exists from public school all the way up to University.

One of the things I always noticed in my connection to children—and I've always loved teaching children—was that there were those children who would show you moments of real attention and then would drift off. And then there would be these other children who just sort of floated. They seemed to float. They seemed to be very different. It didn't look like they were particularly engaged. And yet, I would always discover that these children who didn't seem to be so engaged were ones who carried a great deal of depth in them. And a depth that was quite obvious when it came to responding to questions or those kinds of things.

I was seeing the Right. And I was seeing the Right before I truly understood, or could understand what that was all about. I didn't do a very good job. That is, given where I was in my own process and given that I was not-self and deeply strategic, I was following the basic regimen that most teachers follow in the way they educate children. And of course, all of that is rooted in being deeply strategic and placing a great deal of pressure on children to fulfill the strategic requirements in order for them to be able to succeed, and to be able to succeed on the mental plane according to the way in which a strategic being is intended to be.

So, it is been a long journey for me to come from that very, very early insight, very early taste of the Right to get to this place after all of these years to have the knowledge and to understand the mechanics. And ultimately to be able to lay a foundation, not simply for those of you who are Right, because those of you who are here, you're involved in Human Design. There's a great deal about this that you already know and by just operating out of your Strategy and Authority you're already aligning yourself to what is your nature.

It's more about what I can share with you and what I can show you that you can take in in your receptivity. And that, ultimately, in being able to recognize that, in being able to resonate to the essence of what it is to be a receptive mind, that in turn, the potential that is there in each and every one of you to provide a way, a way for those who are on your fractal, a way for those children who are Right-minded, to be able to operate successfully on this plane and not be handicapped.

Nobody Suffers More than the Right-Minded in a Strategic World

It's interesting. I have a Facebook page and I made a comment this morning about looking forward to teaching this class or beginning this course today. I made the comment that nobody suffers more than the Right-minded in a strategic world. And it was interesting to see resistance from those who are Left. It was actually quite amusing, in a way.

I don't think the Right-mind, the receptive mind, is in any way even understood from the most primitive level by those who are Left, because the Left-minded is so deeply, deeply strategic. And in their strategic, they only have their focus. And in only having that focus, there is no way they can grasp, even for a moment, what it really means to be Right-minded. To be Right-minded is something that is extraordinary.

As I said, because of the Right-ness I have in being able to look, being able to see the Right-ness in others, it has allowed me to find a way to be able not just simply measure it, but to grasp it, not just within the context of the mechanics, but to find a way to bring it into the life and allow it to flourish in the life.

Like so many things in my work, it began with my own family. My eldest son is Right-minded and I did not want him to suffer and be disadvantaged. He had to go into all of these traditional and standard schools where everything was done strategically, where the pressure was to develop strategic skills. The only way I could protect him was to create a kind of advantage for him in seeing his own mental process. That is, to be able to relax into what it is to be Right-minded.

Don't Study, Just Receive

My thing with him has always been the same, and it has been my basic advice that I've always given those who are Right-minded: Don't study. Don't be concerned about what it is that you know or understand or can make sense of. Don't look for it. Don't try to verify for yourself what is there. Do not put pressure on yourself to assess where you are at. Just simply recognize one thing and one thing only. Eve-

Everybody on this plane can benefit from Strategy and Authority. That is, everybody based on their design has a way in which they can navigate on this plane.

If you honor that way of navigation, nothing more, nothing less, and just allow the mental plane to be what it is for you without pressure, without conditions, without rules, because all of those things ultimately are only going to bring you pain. What you are here to do is receive. This receptive mind is about receiving.

It is something to understand and to understand very deeply about the nature of our evolutionary process. When we're looking at Right-ness, what we're looking at is the evolutionary movement. This is the whole story. We're looking at this evolutionary movement. We're looking at this movement that is going from the all-Left and moving towards the all-Right [white arrow].

Two Realms: Left-Minded and Right-Minded

It also divides us into two different realms. In the world of Variable we have this side over here in which everything is predominately Left in the sense that you can see it most clearly if you're looking at the Personality, which is the mind [black arrows in each upper right corner circled in red]. And here you can see that every single one of these on the Personality side is Left-minded.

If you come over here to this (right) side, you can see again that everything over here is Right-minded. So, this is an enormous transition. That is, this difference between the left side of the graph where absolutely everything is Left-minded, and the right side of the graph where everything is Right-minded.

Again, by the way, this is my Variable. So you can see where my Right-ness is in a collection of Left-ness [PLR/DLL yellow star]. And here I am looking over here to you, to all of you, and to your Right-ness.

And the Right-ness on this side is not just simply a matter that everything is moving to the Right.

Two Different Kinds of Right-ness

It's about understanding that there is a fundamental division and that division is like this [dividing into quadrants]. That is, the evolutionarily flow is in this direction [arrow pointing to lower right corner,] but it is also in this direction [arrow pointing to upper right corner]. In other words, there is a movement that is towards the all-Right and the all-Right ultimately is leading toward the advent of the Rave that will come into the world post-2027.

This is the all-Right [lower right corner,] and the all-Right that is specifically about the development of human beings, or the continuation of the nine-centered human as we move onward over the next 12 to 1,300 years in our story. So, we have two different kinds of Right-ness and two different ways in which that's going to operate.

But I want you to grasp something about what the Right really represents. I've been talking about it for a very long time now. That is, the whole story of 2027, what really in essence began in 1781 with the advent of the nine-centered being. From 1781 onward, basically humanity as we understand it has been gradually and more rapidly, as we move forward, losing its fertility. The nature of what it is to be human, the inherent potential in each of us to differentiate, to be unique, to be able to express our uniqueness, to be able to stand alone in our own authority, which is the ultimately potential that is there in an individual is something that does not belong to the future.

As a matter of fact, it is something that is dying. It is something that is not getting any energy from the forces. It is something that is not being supported by the program. It is a hangover, if you will, of the seven-centered phenomena.

The Rave

Where we're really moving towards in terms of the evolutionary movement is a creature that none of us could really recognize. It's something that I've discussed in many different programs, but particularly in Rave Cosmology, when I took a look at the nature of the Rave and the way in which the Rave will operate when it comes into the world.

We would not consider it to be something we would like to be. As a matter of fact, the closest we can come to it at this point now is the example of the severely autistic child. The Rave that is coming is not going to be physically equipped in the way in which we are equipped. They're going to have poor eyesight, they're going to have weak hearing, and they're not going to have very good control over their body. They are certainly not going to be communicative. They're not going to mature in a way that is something we can grasp.

Those children, when they are first born, if they are as most of them will be, will be born in ignorance. In other words, those beings around them will only be suffering because they think they have given birth to or have a radically disadvantaged and handicapped child. These children more than likely will be warehoused. It's actually in the warehousing of these children that their ultimate emergence probably lies. Everything about the nature of the Rave that is coming, everything about the Right-ness that you see in those four Right arrows at the lower Right-hand corner, everything about the Rave is about surrender, and about surrender to something that we do not grasp.

One of the most fascinating areas in my work over the years has been working with the trans-auric form; that is, Penta and WA, and Penta particularly. Those of you who have background in Penta, whether it's family Penta or BG5, the business variant, any examination of Penta tells you that trans-auric forms have enormous power over us. We're all born into Pentas. Most of us live our lives in Pentas, create our own Pentas as parents or relationships or in the work that we do, and so forth.

And yet, the Penta itself is something that controls us in a way, but it doesn't have complete control over us. It can't have complete control over us, because what we still have is very, very powerful capacity to define our own nature and to express our uniqueness which is inherent in us. It is not the case for the Rave that is going to come.

The Rave that is going to come into the world, the moment you take three of these children who would appear to be unfortunate handicapped beings, whose parents are going to put them away because they will not be able to raise them, they will not be able to nourish them on their own, they will have to put them into some kind of institution, and the moment that three of these beings are together in the same aura is the moment that something emerges that we cannot quite grasp.

Raves are Intended to be Components in a Conscious Penta

As a matter of fact, anytime I talk about it, it is chilling in a way because it is alien, in that sense. These beings are intended to be components. They're intended to be components in a conscious Penta. Whenever we're in a trans-auric form, whenever we're within a Pentic aura, the Penta is not conscious.

As a matter of fact, most human beings never recognize the fact that they are being controlled by the Penta unless they're lucky enough in the serendipity of their process to actually find out about the way in which Penta works, and then it's astonishing, because you suddenly realize how much of everything that you thought, so many things that you assumed were in the nature of being human is not in the nature of the human at all. It is in the nature of Penta.

The thing about the coming Rave is that the Rave is not about defining its own nature. It's not about having its own authority. It's not about having its own identity. It is about giving all of that up, and giving all of that up to a conscious Penta that controls them; it is the conscious Penta that determines the nature of the way in which their whole process is going to operate.

In trans-auric forms study, Penta is something that is enormously powerful in its strategic capacity. It is Penta that dominates our lives by giving us all a material direction. As a matter of fact, without Penta, we would not live in the kind of material world that we live in, not at all. The thing to grasp about the conscious Penta is that it is going to have resources that the single human being can never have, and that human beings in a Penta as we know them could never compete.

The gifts of the Rave are quite extraordinary once they are incorporated into the phenomenon of the conscious Penta. To be Right to begin with, all of these arrows pointing Right, what they're really saying to you is that these are beings who have the most sensitive and the most recently developed cognitive potential. And it is cognitive potential unlike anything that the Left knows.

The Visual Cortex Mutation

The Left [circled in red] is rooted in the splenic binary. It is rooted in the most basic survival binary and the outer vision in the 3rd Tone in terms of the end of the process for the Left. It has nothing to do with the potential of what Right cognition is, which begins with a transformation in the visual cortex. It is in the visual cortex that the real mutation took place in 1781.

In that mutation, those who are Left have a visual cortex that maintains the seven-centered phenomena. That is, the binocular vision used to focus and frame strategy, to be able to see things, to be able to focus on them, to be able to put them in their place, to be able to store that information, and to be able to developed strategic possibilities relative to what they see.

But from the moment we entered into 1781, from the moment that mutation began, there was mutation that took place in the visual cortex. And that mutation in the visual cortex opened up with what is the 4th Tone, the first of the Right Tones, and this first of the Right Tones is all about inner vision. Now, inner vision is so incredibly different, so diametrically different from outer vision.

I know; I'm an outer vision person. I'm deeply stimulated by the nature of the visual and it is the visual that allows me strategically to do my work. Many of you know that I have never worked with notes. I truly never know what I'm going to say. But what I do need is images. As long as I have an image, as long as there is something for me to see, my outer vision finds its focus, finds its strategy, and is able to deliver its strategic information.

Right Inner Vision: The Potential to Store Unlimited Amounts of Information

But inner vision is something totally different, because it's not about seeing on the inside. It has nothing to do with that. It is about being able to take in all-seeing, because that's what it's about. It is about all-seeing. That is very, very different from narrow-seeing; narrow-seeing, the very focused way of looking at things. When you're dealing with the Right, inner vision is not so much inner vision as it is that potential that is there within the construct of the brain to store unlimited amounts of information; unlimited amounts of information.

Jorge Luis Borges

There was a wonderful human being. I had the real privilege of knowing this man who lived on this plane. He was great writer. His name was Jorge Luis Borges. He was a writer of short stories and poetry. He was a deeply, deeply intelligent man and deeply steeped in literature. He had a great story—by the way, he had a Right-mind—it was called Funes, the Memorious. It was about this man who one day is standing on his veranda, someplace in Argentina, Borges was in Argentina, standing on his veranda—and by the way, Borges was blind, which makes it even more interesting—and all of a sudden he realized that not only could he see, he could see everything; everything. He could see every blade of grass. He could see everything. There was no focus anymore. It was horrifying. There was this moment of horror that there was everything. There was so much. There was so much to see.

The Creative Potential Inherent in the Right

The great tragedy for me of what has taken place in the lives of the Rights since 1781 is this incredible wonder of this all-seeing that has never been given its due, never been given respect, never been allowed to emerge on this plane. Oh yeah, it comes out in some ways, because as I will describe to you as we move through this process, the Right brings creativity. And so there is this deep creative resource that does emerge at times. Some of the most creative people that I have in my life are deeply, deeply Right beings.

You can see that their creative potential is something that is just limitless. There is no end to the possibilities. As a matter of fact, the only thing that limits their creativity is the pressure of the strategic world to narrow their focus and try to get them to be creative in certain ways.

I was having this conversation before with my musical friend, Jean Pierre, who is all-Right. We've been making music together for over 20 years. He was saying that he was on his way to the Montreux Festival. He lives in Switzerland. He was talking about how it's no longer a jazz festival; that it's become a pop festival. I made the comment that this is just the Left taking over. Jazz is deeply Right. Pop is incredibly Left. It's incredibly strategic looking for the hooks, trying to grab people instead of just releasing the beauty that is there.

The creative potential inherent in the Right that given the nature of your design—after all, the level of creativity, the level of potential creativity in Right beings is determined not simply by their Right-ness, obviously that is just simply the Variable. And I say “simply” putting that in context. It has to do with the nature of their design. It has to do with the way in which they were raised. It has to do with many, many things in terms of what quality of their creative potential is actually going to emerge.

The All-Seers

But it goes back to the beginning of this mutation in the visual cortex, this mutation that leads to all-seeing; all-seeing. Each of you who are here with your Right-minds, you are all-seers. It's really something to grasp. You are all-seers. This is the great dividing line here. On this side of the dividing line are the all-seers. And on this side of the dividing line are the narrows seers. It's just the way that it is.

It's not about one's better than the other, because it isn't. It is about difference. The narrow-seeing was very beneficial for us for the last hundred thousand years. It gave us an enormous advantage over our predecessors before the seven-centered, the five-centered Neanderthal. It gave us real advantages over that. It allowed us to build the world that we built through focus, through strategies.

It also brought so many of the negatives that the strategic brought. It brought the dog-eat-dog world. It brought the world that Lao Tzu hated so much, the world of the narrow focus, the world in which the mind distorts and controls. What we're moving towards in this future is something that we don't want to actually get there. You're not Raves. That's something to grasp. You're going to have to live your Right-ness within the context of what it is to be human. It means you need to see and recognize your all-seeing before you can do anything with your life. It's the first thing to recognize about yourself.

I've spent 23 years of my life now telling people to love themselves. It's a tough job telling people to love themselves. It's so easy to see the dislike in what human beings carry within themselves. There is a great sense of unfulfillment and a great sense of lack of triumph in the way in which most Right beings feel about themselves in this world. They always feel secondary to the pressures of the strategic phenomena. It is something that bruises them in the end.

If you add to that the fact that nearly 70% of humanity has undefined Egos, then their lack of self-worth, the way in which that lack of self-worth hurts them, the way in which they cannot compete with the strategic world and the way in which the strategic world sets up competition, all of this leads to not a sense of how wonderful and how awesome it is to be an all-seer, but a sense of failure, a sense of lack of worth, a sense of not being able to fit in, a sense of being different in the most negative way. A huge psychological burden that is placed on them is that they're constantly, constantly trying to find a way to turn their all-seeing into a narrow-seeing.

It is the great tragedy for me of our time, because that all-seeing, I can smell it. Right beings—it was one of the most interesting phenomena in this past Ibiza Event when I did the sixteen Variable workshops. Ah, the difference of the Right to the Left. They're different. I can feel how deep that goes and I know that they don't know. I know that they don't know. They can't know.

This is the whole dilemma of what it is to be a Right-mind. You're the all-seer. But being the all-seer doesn't mean that you can go and grab anything, because you can't. It's not what you're here for, because remember what Right-ness is really all about. Right-ness is about these creatures who are coming that won't be interested in themselves. They won't be curious about what they know, what they have. They are simply going to be receptive components in a complex social organism in which the organism as a whole, the whole that is greater than the sum of the parts, is actually going to be life. That's not us.

The Need for the Depth of the Right

We need to be able to define our place on this plane as humans who are Right. Because you're not Raves and there is no larger social organism in that sense that you can surrender to. There isn't. But we need you. We need your depth. We need to have access to the all-seeing. It's what you're here for.

One of the most beautiful things about the Human Design System is that it's rooted in a universal mechanic. That is, the mechanic of Strategy and Authority, the mechanic of navigating, to just simply being able to navigate. If you navigate correctly on this plane, that navigation is ultimately going to bring you into the connection with those who are correct for you.

The Importance of Who is in Your Life

If you are Right-minded, there is nothing more important in your life than who is in your life, because the beings in your life are the ones who provide you with your potential to release your all-seeing. You cannot release it yourself. You cannot initiate it yourself. It is something that is drawn from you. You are the well.

You cannot go into that well yourself. There is no way you can do that. To do that is to drive yourself crazy, like trying to remember something, forcing yourself to try to remember something; this Left. This is what the Left does. The Left has strategies, locks certain pieces of information into their memories so that they can use that information in strategic application. But that's not what the Right is about.

Breathing in Awareness

If you go looking for something, you're not going to find it. All you're going to find is discomfort. It appears as if all-seeing, in a sense, is no-seeing it all. It's why you have to love yourself. It is why you need to have a place within you that you can rely on, an authority that you can rely on so that you can just breathe. It's breathing. You're here to just breathe in awareness. You're here to breathe in the seeing. And it goes far, far beyond seeing.

The 4th Tone opens up this process because it is the place in the visual cortex where the mutation takes place. But it all leads to the Solar Plexus binary, to the 5th and 6th Tones, to an incredible sensitivity, to frequency, to aura, to touch, a capacity to take in information at the most profound level, and yet, just the taking in. It's not about doing anything with it. It's about just taking it in.

A Deep Ocean of Information

The world has never allowed you that. The way you've been conditioned has never promoted that. You've spent all of your lives deeply lost in trying to be strategic, in trying to turn off the ocean that you are, because it's not just a well, it's an ocean. It's an ocean that is so deep that you can't imagine where the bottom of it is.

There you are with your little bucket trying to dig in and grab some this or that to fulfill some kind of strategic conditioning. And there is this vast, vast ocean, and nobody gets access to it. As long as you're playing strategic, no one gets access to it and the beauty of it. Only when you begin to sense, to recognize the depth of that ocean within you, only then are you going to find the love for yourself that is your armor in this life. You're different.

There haven't been creatures like you for so long. The last Right creatures were Neanderthals and after all, we are an enormous advancement beyond that, the spiral beyond that. You're like aliens, aliens who landed a few hundred years ago, trying to assimilate on this plane; so different. And the vastness of the pool that is there in you as a group is absolutely astonishing.

All of you together carry with you more all-seeing than just about all the information that strategic people have been gathering for the last 200 years or so; just the few of you who are here. You have, in a way, no sense of it because it seems so incredible in that way how profound that is, how deep that is, how amazing what it is that each of you in your lifetime, moment by moment, breath by breath, day after day, year after year, the amount of information that you're taking in at so many incredible levels; in, in, in, in, all of it is in there.

And yet, in the homogenized world where you live, in the conditioning that you've had since you were a child, all of that incredible ocean is covered over. There are these little stored buckets of this and that, the pretending of being strategic that you hold onto, because you haven't lived your nature. It's time to live your nature.

Radically Embrace Strategy and Authority

It begins with understanding something. Whatever your authority is, whatever that strategy is relative to your Type, it is something that you must radically, radically embrace, because it takes away the need for the mind to do anything. After all, the great enemy of all of us whether we are Left or Right is the mind making decisions. It's the mind trying to control the life. It's why it is so incredibly difficult for the strategic minded to just let go and surrender. It's mind that gets in the way.

Once you understand that the way in which you navigate on this plane is the only thing that matters to you, nothing else, you do not need to be concerned about what's there, what you've taken in or not taken in, or this or that, or whether it's useful or not useful or anything else, because the moment you liberate yourself from having your mind try to decide anything, you free yourself from the strategic impulses that have been conditioned in you. You can finally let go of it.

If you let go of it, slowly but surely all of that strategic stuff that's been layered across your mind will slowly breakdown and dissolve and disappear, and you can begin to settle into and embrace what you are. You are the receiving ocean. Allow it to come in. There is nothing else to do. And wait and see. And wait and see. And wait and see, because there's nothing else to do.

When you're correct, when your mind is not doing the navigating, then the ocean will be tapped into. And you will see that what comes out of you is really something that is so profound. There is so much that's possible. And again, it will have to do, because this is creative, it has to do with so many things—the basic nature of your design, your incarnation cross, your profile, the kind of definitions you have, all of these things that are part of the knowledge, all of these things that define the nature of your differentiation. And then that ocean becomes the thing that brings the light into your life, and brings the light into the lives of others.

The Upper Right Quadrant Cannot Produce a Rave Child

This division, you can see it two ways. The first way is the above. And when you're looking at the above, remember that this is a direction that is very human. It's not an evolutionary direction that is pointed at Rave. Basically at the simplest level what that means is nobody born with these Variables is ever going to be able to produce a Rave child. They won't. It is simply not possible. The fact is that this is deeply human and it's deeply human because it is Left-brained [DLL and DLR].

If you look here very carefully, you'll see this is the structure—Right-minded with Left-brain. So you have a Right-mind, the way in which you conceptualize, and you have a Left-brain. And the Left-brain is deeply, deeply connected to the seven-centered past, deeply connected to the strategic existence. And yet it isn't, after all. It is on this side of the divide. And not only is it on the side of the divide, but of course, the Right-mind is so powerful, because it isn't going to respond in the same way to the Left-brain.

Dietary Regimen

This is humanity moving forward. It's humanity moving forward, not giving up its Left-brain, but the way in which it functions is different. Now remember something, it's very important to grasp that these things do not directly connect to each other, even though it looks like that. The way in which this works is like that. You start with transformation number one. And again, one of the things to recognize about being a Right-minded being is that if you do not nourish yourself correctly, if you do not nourish your brain system correctly, it is going to be incredibly difficult for you—as a matter of fact, impossible for you—to truly be able to settle into the Right-ness of your mind.

It's dietary regimen. It is dietary regimen that is going to bring out the essence of that Left-brain [circled] that will support your Right-mindedness. Now, remember the Left-brain is an active brain. And that means that it has to be nourished properly. It needs to get the right food; it needs to digest the food correctly in order for that brain to function correctly. The fact is that most human beings, because they do not operate correctly, because they do not take nutrition into their system that is correct, that their whole dysfunctional Left-ness overwhelms their Right-ness.

In order to be human, in this sense, with a Right-mind it becomes absolutely essential that you deal with your Left-brain. That Left-brain is really interesting. Given that you have a Right-mind, it's going to be very, very busy storing your ocean. As a matter of fact, the Left-brain is going to do a much more sophisticated job at storing information than the Right-brain will do with the Right-mind. It will be much more efficient because it is an active brain. It's going to be much more efficient at being able to organize all of the vast levels of data that are flowing in.

That says something that is very, very important, by the way. Remember, this is human. There's a dilemma here for the Right being. The Right being cannot live without the Left, anymore than the Left cannot live without the Right. The future will prove that. We will desperately need each other. When it comes to being able to be Right-minded and being able to work with the demands of the Left world, it is those beings here who are best equipped.

As a matter of fact, it is those beings in this quadrant [see image above] that will have the most difficult time settling into their Right-ness, because they do have a Left-brain, and it's a busy, busy brain.

And if they've been conditioned, that conditioning really creates dilemmas for them, because it makes it so easy for them to think that they should be Left-minded, that they should be strategic in the way in which their mind operates. The only way that these beings are going to function correctly is when their brain system is healed.

Healing/Aligning the Brain

Now, for the nine-centered being, my word for healing is alignment. It really is about alignment. For those of you who—I know many of you here are deeply involved in your experiment with PHS—but for those of you who aren't, those of you who are downloading, please recognize how important it is. One of the most important things you're going to do after Strategy and Authority is to begin your experiment when it's correct for you. After all, this is not about being homogenized. It's about your Strategy and Authority. It is about when things are correct for you.

But when it is correct for you, relative to the Type that you are, the way things that come to you, when it's correct for you to enter into the experiment of dietary regimen, it will be the most significant step you're going to make in your life. It is just an extraordinary thing, because it is going to finally align your system. It is going to take away the Left strategic pressure. After all, this is a holistic being. It's not about the Left-brain doesn't have anything to do with the Right-mind; they're together in the same vehicle. They're intended to operate together in a unique differentiated fashion that leads to the fulfillment of their potential.

But you can only accomplish that when that brain system is aligned to the way it's intended to work with its Right-ness. You can only do that through Primary Health System. You can only do that through PHS. It is only through PHS that ultimately you can realign your brain system to what is correct for you. Remember something about PHS; it is not something to dabble with. It is something that you enter into, and it's there for your life. If it isn't there for your life, you are never going to be free of the way in which strategic processes determine who you are and move you further and further away from the essence of what you are here for.

The Right is Here to Offer the Ocean

You're here to offer the ocean. It sounds poetic, I know. But it's the only way, the only language I have to describe that. And in that, all-Right-minded beings, the most important treasure in your life is who is that being that's there with you. Those who are going to draw on well, those are going to pull from you the beauty that is inherent in you, those who are going to be there in your life who are going to allow you to fulfill your purpose, because it's only when the ocean is revealed, it's only then that you will find truly the depth of love for yourself. That's the great healing agent.

The Right suffers from a lack of love. It does not love itself. It does not. It is very, very difficult. It's only when you begin to recognize what flows from you, it's only when you begin to see how profound that is, how endless it is, how enormous it is, that you begin to appreciate why you are here on this plane and how worthy you are to be on this plane, how special it is to carry such a gift.

A Different Kind of Being

Right-Right, Right-Right, Right-Right, Right-Right, this is where there is the real shift. This is the shift that leads to both the combination of the Right-brain and the Right-mind. These beings are very, very different. They're very different. Where that difference emerges is in the way in which their role is determined in this life.

In Variable work, we have two kinds of Variable divisions. We have the lower division which is called the Independent Variable [outlined in pink], these are the Nodes. This is our storyline. This is our movement in space. This is the life we are dropped into.

Then we have the Dependent Variable [outlined in blue]. That Dependent Variable is dropped into the life. This is what we call our profile. This is what we call our incarnation cross. It is the Sun/Earths. It is something to grasp here about the nature of this Dependent Variable. All of these beings share, this is a whole new kind of being, being dropped into the world. They're a whole new kind of being.

The way in which their profile and their cross operates is totally different, it really is. You can have beings who are on the same cross and have totally different Variables. If I were to have the energy in this life of mine to write an incarnation cross book only for those who have the Dependent Right Variable, the description of the crosses and the way they would work, the description of the profiles and the way in which they would operate would be quite different, because these are different beings.

The Most at Risk of Being Alienated

We have never seen such beings. Oh, yeah, they're dropped into storylines that have some reference points for us. You can see that here in the certain levels of Left-ness that still remain until you get to the end of this process. But, it is something truly to understand about these beings. These are the ones who are most at risk. When I say that, they're the ones who are most at risk of being alienated in this life, not feeling like it's possible for them to fit in. Not feeling like there's a place for them in this world, always feeling like somehow that they are the aliens, that they are truly outsiders.

For so many human beings, just the feeling of that is overwhelming, and it's overwhelming in its discomfort. Children who carry this, deeply within themselves recognize that are not the same as these other creatures; they're not. They're different. They're really different. They're so different until they can embrace that alien-ness, until you can embrace what it is to be different, and to be different in this way. Everything about life has been the pressure that you need to have control over what you take in. This is the strategic propaganda. Whatever you take in—study this and turn it into something useful—the strategic way.

So the way in which human beings are determined, the way their value is determined is by this very, very basic, propagandized formula that what you take in is what you have to work with and this is what you have to do because this is what's going to determine you. It's going to determine your worth. It's not who you are. It's never going to be who you are.

Navigate Correctly

There is so much creative potential that is there in Right-ness if it's just left alone. When I say left alone, you don't have to decide anything. You don't have to make anything up. You don't have to prove anything. All you need to do is make sure that you're navigating correctly. If you navigate correctly, you will take in the prana of your life everything that you need to take in. Your navigation will lead you to what is correct for you to do, the doing in this life. You do not have to ponder that. You do not have to worry about that. You don't have to listen to anybody's strategic idea of what you need to do with your life and in what way.

Only then, only then, are you going to be able to release this profound creativity that is there in you. It's the magic. It's the magic of what you can be. There is a deep, deep, deep malaise on this planet, all these human beings who really detest what they are, who are afraid of the world, who are afraid of not being able to survive, not being able to make it, not being smart enough, not being good enough, not being rich enough, not being pretty, and on and on and on.

How at a loss these beings can be, how afraid they can be. It's time for all of that to change or we don't have a future together. The only way that is going to happen is that step-by-step there are those like you who can go through the process of aligning themselves to what is correct. It's that alignment, that alignment to what is your way to be correct, what is your way to navigate on this plane, to be correct in the sense of the way in which you nurture yourself. If you do not nurture yourself correctly, you cannot maintain your power, and your purpose in this life.

It's about becoming selfish, deeply selfish; to trust only in what's possible for you, to begin to look after yourself, to begin to take the strategic pressure off of your shoulders. If you've made the right decisions in this life, there will be always those who will draw on you, who will always provide you with those opportunities, those possibilities for you to be able to exercise what is there within you.

Be Used Well

I love working with Right beings. In that way I can use my strategic focus to pull from them their resources. When that happens for them, they get fulfilled. You're here to prepare yourself to be used well. It's such a beautiful thing to be used well, to be rewarded, to see your value in this life, and to recognize that you're here to make an extraordinary contribution.

Yes, you're not Raves. And no, you're not going to be part of some deeply homogenized social construct that strips you of your identity and only pulls from you the values that you take in. But, in order for you to thrive on this plane, you do need the social infrastructure. You do need the right beings. You do need a platform upon which you as a being is recognized and the profundity that's there in you is allowed to be released. Without that, we do not have a creative world. Without that, it all goes stale. You can see it all around you, can't you, how the creativity on this plane is fading, how everything is repetition of something else? Well, it's time for all of that to change.

All right, well, I hope you enjoyed that. I'm glad that you're participating. Yes, take care, just breathe; that's all. Bye for now.

Lecture Two

Hello and welcome to all of you and into our journey From the Right. As you can see here, we're going to be dealing with the Left-brain and the Right-mind. Everything about this whole section [upper right quadrant] is all about Right-mind.

We're going to be dealing with this zone over the next two weeks. We have four weeks left in this process so I'm going to spend two weeks up here and I'm going to spend the following two weeks down here [lower right quadrant]. So, this section that we're entering into now, which is this upper right-hand section, I'm going to divide this into two parts. Today I'm going to be looking at these two sections above and next week I will take a look at the following sections in relationship to your charts.

The Evolutionary Potential

But I want to just review for a moment to make clear about the significance of this particular quadrant here in the grid. Remember that here is the natural line. That is the natural movement. In other words, that is the natural evolutionary movement, moving from the all-Left and moving towards the all-Right. So here we see the true direction which means that the primary quadrants in terms of the way in which the evolutionary process works are these two quadrants [outlined in black]. This is really the direction that is most deeply embraced by the program because it is through this direction that the evolutionary potential, that is, the emergence of nine-centered Raves is going to come about.

Anyone who is in the other quadrants, here or here [marked with red Xs], they do not carry within them the potential of being able to be the parents of, to be capable of producing what is ultimately a nine-centered Rave. And by the way, post-2027, anyone in these two areas, I don't know how excited they would be about the possibility of fertilizing the potential of a nine-centered life, given what that will look like in relationship to what they are like as nine-centered humans.

The Left-Brain Maintains Humanness

Nonetheless, this is the direction of the program, so these two quadrants take on a specific value in terms of our movement into the future in the way the program is orienting us. However, there is another potential and that other potential is this direction direction [red V-shaped arrow]. And this is all about maintaining what is fundamentally our humanness as we move forward towards the end of this particular round. That is, for the approximately 1,300 years we have left in the round, and according to what I was told by the Voice, what we have left for life on this plane.

please understand, this has nothing to do body over here is a Rave. It is simply about the evolutionary movement, the way that movement is going. But it is something to really grasp about the real difference in this dividing line here on the Right-hand side, because in this dividing line you can see very clearly what it's about. It is this combination that you have of the Right-mind and the Left-brain [circled in red]. So here is the combination.

Of course, it is this Left-brain that is maintaining the humanness. It is the

These two directions are very, very different in terms of the program. Again, with us in the sense that it's not like any-

Right-brain down below [image above, circled in purple] that obviously is pointing in a totally different direction because it is a different kind of brain system.

The Upper Right Quadrant: The Future of Humanity

So when we're dealing with this upper quadrant, what we're dealing with is the future of humanity in terms of the way Left-ness is going to have to deal with Right-ness as we move deeper and deeper into the future itself. So, just something to keep in mind about this quadrant [upper right] is that it is also part of the evolutionary movement, but it is part of the evolutionary movement that is being ignored by the program.

It is not being given the same juice that this quadrant [circled, lower right] is getting from the program because this is where the program wants everything to go [lower right arrow,] if I can anthropomorphize that for the moment. This is not [upper right quadrant]. This is sort of the left over, what humans can do, will do in the future. It gives us a great deal of information.

That is, these four different Variables carry with them the essential formulas that are going to be required in order for the humans who are Right and humans who are Left to be able to find a way to be able to survive in a world that's not meant for them anymore.

The Transition between Neanderthal and Cro-Magnon

I always go back. I was always interested in anthropology. I was always curious. One of the things that deeply fascinated me long before my experience and all of these things, was this transition that took place between the Neanderthal and so-called modern man, Cro-Magnon, seven-centered as we refer to it. It was fascinating, this coincidental co-existence that may have lasted as much as—there are estimates anywhere between 75,000 and 200,000 years—that there was a convergence in the presence of both Neanderthal and so-called modern man.

What is fascinating for me is that we're dealing with the same story again, this side-by-side relationship that is going to emerge in which the fertility of the program is pointed at something we're not. I think about Neanderthals. There they were, for however long they were on Earth. They were here for a long time, and all of sudden they didn't have the juice anymore. All of a sudden the background frequency, the nature of the world was not there to support their existence.

I don't know how that must have felt for them. We're not really going to know what that feels like until we get beyond 2027 and the actual mechanism step in. This is the last great moment of humanness. Humanity, despite what it looks like, it's not like it's a grand thing, given the homogenization of the world and the not-self, but nonetheless, this is a great moment for humanity, a great moment in which our power, our intellect, all of the things we have been able to develop, all of these things have been nurtured by this Cross of Planning that has brought about the greatest cooperative efforts in the history of our species.

The Crash of the Neanderthal Spirit

It is only when the Cross of Planning disappears that there really is going to be a crash in the human spirit. I think that's more of a concern than the by-product of that that may take as much as 80 or 100 years, that is, the dissolution of the way in which our civilization operates. I think it is this crashing of the spirit that Neanderthal must have felt, this sense that they have been abandoned by, I wouldn't say the gods or whatever they were into, but there must have been a deep spiritual malaise that became present in Neanderthal.

Now, obviously we don't really know how they processed, what level of self-reflected consciousness was actually there. I have a feeling it was deeply, deeply limited. I think because of the nature of Right-ness as we understand it—and again, Neanderthals displayed what would have been a much more primitive and ancient variation of Right-ness, that not being able to strategically deal with the world, they wouldn't have processed their relationship to the world in the same way, though they would have had a higher level of intellectual capacity than the mammals that were around them. They did manage quite well to develop ways in which to sustain their livelihood and to be able to grow as a species. At the same time when the energy shifted away from them, I think this was more what caused their demise and extinction than anything else.

I had this experience when I was a young boy. I guess I must have been 10 years old. My grandmother and my step-grandfather on my mother's side had had quite a love affair. They were one of those couples who were deeply, deeply, deeply connected to each other. It was obvious even to a child. They doted on each other, they loved each other. It was very clear that that was the case.

I remember them when they were, I guess, in their 70s. It was interesting because my step-grandfather had a heart attack and died rather suddenly and was simply gone. Within two weeks my grandmother died. Basically there was nothing wrong with her. There wasn't. There was nothing wrong with her. But the spirit was drained from her.

It is one of the things they talk about with people who have to go through very profound and invasive surgeries and these kinds of things. The will to live, the spirit within one to maintain one's existence is the thing that holds one to the life. It truly does. And without that spirit, it is so easy to allow the life to drain out.

A Crash of the Human Spirit

It's not like there is going to be an apocalyptic demise to humanity. But I tell you, the moment the juice is taken away, the moment the evolutionary direction changes completely which will come in 2027, there is going to be a crash in the human spirit. It is definitely going to be there.

The same way as my grandmother left this plane, when that spirit is drained out of the homogenized being, because basically they were homogenized people, when that spirit is drained out of them there is nothing left to hold onto. Life just simply ebbs away. And basically, what it affects is their immune system. Fundamentally, what is being affected is their immune system.

It is interesting that so much about the spirit—you can see that in the way in which the gates that pressurize the Spleen that come out of the Root Center, they carry with them an enormous power to bring an essential spirit to awareness, an essential spirit to the immune system. The challenge in the 18/58, the struggle for purpose that's there in the 28/38, the pressure to transform that is there in the 32/54. All of this brings a spirit of life, of aliveness to the immune system, enriches the immune system, so it's not just about survival. There's something else; there is something that is beyond that.

That's where the rug is going to be pulled out on humans. It's the way the rug was pulled out on Neanderthals. I'm convinced that Neanderthals disappeared through disease. I'm convinced that their immune systems crashed. And their immune systems crashed the moment their spirit crashed. Clearly, the human spirit is deeply fragile, particularly at this point in our development; deeply fragile.

The moment we're not carrying that evolutionary push that is giving us the power, because the power is moving deeper and deeper to the Right, further and further away from the Left. And one of those areas where I have my deepest concern is in this quadrant [upper right] that we are going to look at today because it's in this quadrant that we're dealing with whether or not we have the capacity to be able to maintain the spirit. And it is this maintaining of the spirit, despite, or in spite of the movement of the evolutionary flow that is by-passing it, where the spirit is given to the Right, that it is here that our deepest challenge lies to maintain the spirit on our own.

Enriching the Individual Spirit through Individual Authority

This is my teaching. My teaching is about enriching the individual spirit and enriching that spirit through individual authority. To be your own authority is to discover the beauty of who you are. To operate correctly on this plane is to discover the unique differentiated perfection that is there in you as a being so that you don't need the other, you don't need God, you don't need the program to fill you with the spirit of the joy of what life can be. That you don't need the program to tell you where purpose is, that you don't need the program to offer you transformation, that you don't need the program to challenge this life and to be able to conquer it on your own through your own authority.

This is where we have to go as humanity. As I said, these are individual Variables. And as individual Variables, we look at them differently because we look at them in the context of individual beings. But something truly to grasp, that as an evolutionary indicator, it is telling us that here lies a secret for us, that secret of what we need in order to maintain our viability as we move forward.

Because we live in a deeply, deeply homogenized world, the spirit of humanity is going to crash. The human immune system is going to come under threat. It's one of the things to realize about the way in which our treatment of the environment—and not just simply the fact that we pollute. Every living thing pollutes. It's just the scale on which we pollute. But it's not just about the pollution. It is about the ravaging of pristine zones on this planet that is releasing all kinds of bacteria and microbes, releasing things that ultimately are going to be the instruments of taking advantage of the dysfunctional immune system.

Existence Must have a Purpose

The thing to recognize about what it is to the human is in the core of the pressure that is there between the Root Center and the Spleen, in the 28/38. Everything about us ultimately is that existence must have a purpose. The purpose is not simply to exist. It cannot be simply to exist. We are not here simply to exist. It's something that is so important for us.

It is not about where evolution is taking us; it's about grasping that each and every one of us needs to fulfill our unique purpose. It's the beauty of Human Design that it provides a way to save us from being dependent on evolution to protect us, because now, well 2027, we're no longer going to be the be-all and the end-all.

Defending Our Immune System

If you're going to be able to maintain the viability of your form in the future, if you're going to be able to maintain the viability of your immune system, then there are a number of things that are just so obvious that are so much a part of this knowledge. It begins most obviously with Strategy and Authority. But, in terms of our immune systems, it is all about what happens on the Design side; the dietary regimen and the environment. It is through dietary regimen and environment that we provide our immune systems with the protection it needs in order for us to be able to survive in a world that will no longer be concerned about us, and in a world that is going to provide enough enemies, invisible ones, that are going to be able to do their job.

You can see so clearly with swine flu, and fortunately for the planet it is not a deeply virulent flu virus. Nonetheless, you can see how amazing that movement is. Isn't it amazing how many human beings have already been infected by this? It is really incredible. It is something to grasp about the nature of where we're going. If we do not have a way individually to defend our immune systems, they will be attacked over and over and over and over again until we simply do not have any kind of population density at all to compete with what is coming.

It wasn't that Cro-Magnon or seven-centered beings ran around killing five-centered beings. As a matter of fact, there is some evidence that on very rare occasions they actually coupled with each other. So, there were some kinds of connections that existed between them. It wasn't like the strategic Left went out of its way to destroy the receptive Right. It didn't. They just faded away. And they faded away like my grandmother. I guess it's a broken heart that does that. It's the broken heart no longer being the apple of the program's eye, or something in the neighborhood.

We are Not here to be Dependent on Anything

This kind of dependency is so deeply, deeply destructive. Everything that I try to teach is a recognition that we are not here to be dependent on anything, on lovers, friends, jobs, gods, you name it; this is not what we're about. We're here first and foremost to be dependent on ourselves, to trust in our own unique authority, to love ourselves. Out of that trust, out of that self-love, you empower your immune system. You give it great strength.

Self-Love

It is something that I understand so deeply about my own nature. I love myself. It is so obvious to me that that's the healthiest thing about me, because the moment you truly can embrace yourself, trust yourself, love yourself, you empower your immune system, you give it an empowerment that no medicine, no pill, no association; nothing else can do for it what your own self love does for that.

So, this is one of the themes that you have to see about our movement forward. It is out of this self-love, it is out of this deep commitment to ourselves—and that commitment obviously is one that includes dietary regimen and environment that isn't just simply about what we talk about in our work, cleaning the brain, making sure that we give our Uranian bodies as much of an opportunity to fulfill their complete process as possible, it's more than that. You're strengthening with each breath your immune system. And remember, if we don't do that for ourselves, they are simply going to get weaker and weaker and weaker.

PRR/DLL: Demonstrate the Perfect Balance

So, let's begin our look up here in this corner. The corner is a fascinating thing. If you look carefully, what you see about the corner is this double Left on one side, and you have the double Right on the other side; an all-Left Design and an all-Right Personality. So this is a very, very specific connection. It says something very special about these beings, because they are the ones who demonstrate the perfect balance. After all, all the corners are fascinating. It's not just simply the all-Lefts going down to the all-Right. These corners all carry a very special quality to them. It's always true in the magic square. The magic square is a fascinating thing, that the corners are deeply, deeply significant.

So when we're looking at this corner, what we're looking at is the way in which, as humans, we have to deal with, ultimately, the future. In other words, we have to be able to rely on our Left-ness, and most specifically Left-brain, because that is the commonality here. And to recognize something about the purity of that, because it's not intended to disappear. We as humans carry with us this unique Left-ness. As a matter of fact, there is only one Variable that has no Left-ness. After all, 15 Variables out of the 16 all carry an element of Left-ness in them. Only the all-Right is not carrying any Left-ness.

So, Left-ness for us is a continuity. It's not only continuity, it is the thing that we have to rely on in terms of being able to make sure that our immune system operates correctly. Because we are dealing consistently with the Left-brain, we know what this represents. We're dealing with the Design Sun/Earth. We're dealing with the brain itself and we're dealing with a brain that needs to be nurtured in its Left-ness. In other words, this is an active brain.

That active brain is what we as humans are all about. We're not here to live out the Right-brain experience which is something that is totally new. When I say totally new, it's since 1781. We're here to live out the continuity of the Left-brain and the Left-brain is not just simply active, but it is the brain that is the foundation of what it is to be strategic.

Example Chart 1

Think about examples. You can see here, for example, that you have very, very powerful immune system. To begin with, you're dealing with the dietary regimen that is all about being calm. This is the dietary regimen. So for this being, the essential ingredient that is going to keep this immune system healthy—the thing to recognize about this immune system is that it looks really powerful, doesn't it? But then look carefully. It's just all projected [circled]. It's only projected. It's lacking in energy. You can see where the energy flow is [blue line]. The energy flow is all like this.

So, there is in this split-definition many, many ways in which this split can be connected [red tick marks in the Throat and Root Centers,] so there are endless themes here in terms of the way in which this can all be drawn together. You can see all the open pressure from the Root. Something to keep in mind about is how important the Root Center is to our future.

The Root Center

I don't talk enough about the Root. I think that the format energies and all of that material I did at the Ibiza Event is the most complex and the deepest work that I have ever done in terms of the Root.

In looking at the Root, to recognize that it is this pressure out of the Root that is so important for us as beings. It is this pressure moving towards the splenic system that brings to the Spleen beyond survival, brings to the immune system this enormous power. This is something that is essential, these themes are essential in this being's life.

The dietary regimen is going to keep the immune system healthy. Now obviously, if you're operating through your Strategy and Authority, what that's going to mean is that those beings you're going to need in your life to be able to fulfill that connection—all split definitions are always looking for the connection that is going to bring them that wholeness—that in operating correctly, you have a way through your Strategy and Authority to make absolutely sure that the right beings are coming into your life.

Manifestors Must be Careful about their Bonds

Now, this is a deeply powerful manifesting design. This is a very powerful manifesting process. The thing to recognize about the Manifestor, because the Manifestor has a closed aura, is that the Manifestor has to be so careful about their bonds. Most bonds for a Manifestor simply don't work. They don't work because the aura is closed off. It is in the hands of the Manifestor to decide who is to be in their life. It's not as if you're a Generator or a Projector or a Reflector where ultimately you're waiting for those to come into your life and waiting to have that opportunity to be able to go yes or no. This is about a Manifestor who has to take on the responsibility of initiating who is going to be in their life.

Now, if the brain system isn't operating correctly, then the immune system isn't going to operate correctly. It isn't. As we move closer and closer to 2027 and beyond, it is the enriching of our immune system, the unique immune system that becomes so profound for us because it is truly the thing that is going to bring the deepest well-being into our life and give us more than just survival. Remember something, the spirit in humans is dying. It's dying. Every day that we move forward towards 2027 you can smell it in the air, that the not-self homogenized world is going to find less and less reason to be here, less and less reason to think that life, in and of itself, is of value.

The 40/37 will Feel the Spirit Slowly Moving Out

It's not going to understand it from our context. It is only going to feel that somehow in them as it slowly is pulled away from them. Here is somebody who is carrying the 40/37 [channel circled]. They're carrying one of the fundamental elements of our time. The Cross of Planning, the 40/37 and gates 16 and the 9, this 40/37 is the bedrock of what is holding together the world. And those beings who have the 40/37, as we move closer and closer to 2027, they are the ones who are going to sense this the deepest. They're going to realize, they're going to feel the spirit slowly moving out. It's quite a thing to grasp.

Calm Dietary Regimen

Okay, so we have a calm dietary regimen. Remember, we're dealing with a phenomenon in which the Personality is all-Right, but that is something that is really quite separate in this sense. In other words, yes it is a different way of looking at the world, obviously deeply peripheral in the way it looks. It conceptualizes differently because there is no strategic importance in conceptualizing. There is simply the well, what I always talk about in terms of the Right-minded being, that the Right-minded being is an ocean. They're an ocean of receptivity; there is an ocean that is storing all kinds of deep, deep, deep information that they don't need to catalog in any way.

But, the physical life that lays the foundation, this physical life is very different thing. The body is everything. There's no point in even looking at this until you can come to grips with the body. As we move closer and closer to 2027, if the form principle isn't right, you have a problem.

The Active Brain System is Busy Storing

So, it involves two things. It involves the nurturing of the being, the nurturing that's correct. It's exactly the same configuration I have both in terms of Color and Tone. I'm a 4th Color, 3rd Tone. Third Tone is about outer vision. This is deeply, deeply strategic in its nature. This is an active brain system.

The whole thing about an active brain system that is coupled with a Right-mind is that it's not active for the benefit of strategic thought. It's active for the benefit of storage. It's busy storing. It needs to be busy storing. Because you're Right-minded, it doesn't feel like high activity. It doesn't. It is much more a kind of, how shall I put this, it is just a very, very focused process on making sure that everything that is seen is stored. This is the beauty of this kind of brain. It is storing all kinds of the visual information.

Now, it's very interesting that you have a 17th gate. The 17th gate and the 11th gate—the 17th gate is the right eye and the 11th gate is the left eye, so they're looking at the world. It's very important that what you're looking at, what you need to see and what you're cataloging is patterns. So the moment you're calm, the moment your dietary regimen is calm, is the way in which you get the nutrition that is there for your active brain and for that active brain to catalog patterns. This is what you're doing. You're cataloging patterns.

Now, it doesn't matter whether you have any direct access to that. The Right-brain is a different thing. It is waiting for those to tap into it. But because you're taking in all of these patterns, you become very valuable for the future. In other words, you're a storehouse of pattern information that becomes available when your Rightness is tapped into. Everything about having an active brain means that it needs to be fed properly, because it's burning energy. It's using up much more energy than a Right-brain uses up, which means that the quality of the nutrition you take into your system is deeply, deeply important.

Environment: See All the Possibilities

Once this is established, once you're honoring what is your dietary regimen, the next step is environmental. Because once you begin to enter into an association with your correct environment, this finally opens up the way. What it's opening up is a tremendous capacity to take in peripheral information. You're here to see all the possibilities, endless possibilities [circled].

This is so magnificent when you connect it to the outer vision of your active brain, the way your active brain can store all of these patterns. And in storing all of these patterns it means that what you see peripherally, all the possibilities that you see, that those possibilities not only get stored, but as they're stored they feed [arrow pointing up] the possibility ultimately of your outer authority. That is, your capacity when somebody approaches you to be able to release the correct pattern information to them.

Again, if you're homogenized, none of this works anyway. It certainly doesn't work properly. The whole thing to understand is that Strategy and Authority is there to bring you the thing to be involved in. You need an environment that is going to stimulate you. It's a stimulation environment. It's an urban environment. It's a hardscape. It's where things are going on. It's where stuff is happening. You need to be in an environment where you're physically active so that you can see everything.

And what we're seeing, the possibilities that are there in the patterns, this is what's going to nourish the deep potential in you in terms of your ability to be able to share the rulership knowledge that you have, because this is your cross. Out of you comes the potential wisdom to provide the patterns for those who need to understand which way to go and how to get there. You're the one who can deliver that.

No Good or Bad Variable

There is no problem in any configuration, in anyone's unique Variable. There are no good Variables or bad Variables. Don't confuse what I show you in terms of evolutionary movement; don't confuse this with dilemmas in having this kind of Variable or that, because in the end, they're all either perfect or they're entirely distorted. It doesn't matter which one it is, because it does get back to the same things.

Now, there's something, though. As we move forward towards 2027 it is not enough to follow your Strategy and Authority. The only way that I can present the knowledge in the world is to present Strategy and Authority as the first step, the catalyst. It is remarkable, by the way, because there is an enormous explosion of interest in Human Design, really extraordinary. It's really beginning to tap into the collective. It's really beginning to move out. And that first level that all of those beings are meeting is this first level of Strategy and Authority, because once you embrace it as an experiment, you discover right away that this is something that really makes a difference in your life.

Living Out One's Storyline

But, in order for us to thrive in the future, and I don't mean just us in our personal lives, but those who will follow us, our children, our grandchildren and so forth, these beings need to be equipped far beyond Strategy and Authority. They need to be raised correctly. They need to be raised according to their dietary regimen, raised according to who they are as a being so that by the time they reach their Saturn as true nine-centered beings, they can establish themselves in their correct environment and live out their storyline.

Everything about this is about being able to live out the storyline. There is no conflict between being active in your environment and peripheral in your vision; none. It's not like it's a problem. It isn't. When it becomes a problem is when this person is homogenized and they want to be strategic. That's when it's a problem. When they are distracted and they're trying to see probabilities and being strategic in the way in which they see those things instead of being moved by desire, they are motivated or they lack motivation entirely.

The whole thing about being homogenized is that everything becomes distorted. But the moment you're operating correctly, there is no distortion. These things work beautifully together if you are surrendered to what it is to be you. All of us were raised conditioned. Every single one of us came into this world as deeply conditioned beings. Some of us may have had different serendipitys in terms of this or that, but basically speaking, all of us were deeply conditioned.

The Need to be Radical to Catch up with Your Storyline

It means that our process is one in which the natural development of what it is to be nine-centered is something that is not possible for us. What is possible for us is the most radical approach that we can take in order to make up for years and years and years of conditioning. Now, we know that there is a basic seven-year process. This is for the crude deconditioning to get rid of the really superficial, homogenized garbage that all of us had to deal with.

But, in order to move your process faster, in that sense, the more radical your approach to the Design side, the more successful your overall process is going to be, because you need to catch up with your storyline. You need to finally be correct in order to fit into that. So to be active in your environment is deeply important even though that activity has no focus. It doesn't need a focus.

Left Active/Right Peripheral: What You Do Does Not Determine Who You Are

One of the things to understand about being Left active and Right peripheral is that what you do does not determine who you are. This is the thing. What you do does not determine who you are; only to other people, because this is the way the strategic homogenized world operates. They look at what you do and they try to define you according to what you do. But, this is just about being active. It's not about anything else. You can be active spinning yarn. You can be active playing cards. And everybody looks at you and they say, "What the hell are you doing?" But while you're doing that, your peripheral vision is working just great and you're taking in all kinds of information.

What you're going to be active about is simply a matter of following and honoring your Strategy and Authority because that's what it's going to do. It's going to take you to that thing that is correct for you to be busy with. But what you're busy with is not the point, no matter what it is, no matter what you're doing, it isn't the point. The point is that doing that is healthy for you physically. And by doing what's healthy for you physically, it is good for your immune system and it opens up your true capacity to see.

Example Chart 2

Here's our second example. You can see in this case [next page] we have a totally different configuration. We move from the Manifestor to the mental Projector with no direct inner authority. Remember, they have an inner authority, it's just not direct. The same thing is true for a Reflector. This assumption that they have none is not the case. They just don't have it direct. The Reflector has to wait out the cycle of the Moon. The mental Projector has to bounce things off of people and go through that process of hearing several times, many times what they are saying, in order to really find what their truth is.

The Cross of Consciousness—Difficulty having Its Feet on the Ground

For somebody like this, we have a different dilemma here. We have an immune system that's inherently weak to begin with. We have an open immune system. Remember, this is a single definition and a very strange one because the definitions are both unconscious. This is Cross of Consciousness. And Cross of Consciousness people have a great deal of difficulty, particularly the not-self people, to have their feet on the ground. They don't have their feet on the ground. It's sort of like they're floating up there somewhere dealing with all those consciousness themes, and in fact, most of them are a disaster when it comes to the material plane and really dealing with the world as it is.

So, for these kinds of beings, Strategy and Authority is enormously important for them. This strategy for the mental Projector is to recognize that any invitation that comes to them is one they need to discuss. They need to discuss it several times with different beings in order to slowly be able to accumulate what they need to get in order to be able to really figure out the way things are supposed to be for them so they can make the correct decision.

Totally Undefined G, Ego and Solar Plexus

In a system like this, because they're a single definition, what you're dealing with is an enormous amount of center conditioning. In center conditioning, here is a classic example, you don't see this very often. Totally undefined G, totally undefined Ego, totally undefined Solar Plexus system. You have somebody who is deeply, deeply vulnerable. And in this vulnerability lies what happens to most Projectors—enslavement, because there is this enormous dependency. There are four open motors. There is a deep, deep need for energy in this life and energy access in this life. And at the same time, the mind seems to be ruling everything.

Essential for the Mental Projector to Listen to Oneself

The aspect that really speaks for this mind is this hanging 43 [above, circled in blue] that keeps on saying, "I know, I know, I know" but it can't actually say it. It's got to wait for those opportunities to be able to say it. It's very, very important for this mental Projector to understand how essential it is to air things out and to listen to oneself. This is something that is so deeply, deeply important, listening to oneself. If you don't listen to yourself in your connection with others, you're never going to ultimately hear the truth, because it's your truth that becomes something that emerges as you go through this process of using other beings as a sounding board.

PHS: Hot

Now, interesting, here we have the hot. So we have the necessity for a diet in which you have take the cold out of the diet. It's a very, very important dietary regimen for these beings. Again, whenever you're looking at Left-ness, because we're dealing with the same configuration, what we're dealing with is these two aspects of the Design side. These two aspects of Left-ness and what they represent is that it is essential for their active brain to be nurtured correctly. You can see that that this is not just simply the active brain being nurtured correctly. You have two activations that are Head Center activations; there is a deep, deep need for this brain system to operate as cleanly as possible.

Again, the active brain in the active environment; regardless of what it is, regardless of what anyone's environment has to be, the moment you've got a Left environment it's saying something to you. It's saying that the environment that is correct for you nurtures your level of activity. This is somebody that needs to be busy. It is the same sense of busyness; this busyness is very, very important. And this is a Projector, so it's a totally different thing. The busyness that can be there for them, the activity level that can be there for them, is something that is dependent on who is going to be in their life.

The 3/5

The dependency that's there—this is a 3/5—as a homogenized being, the 3/5 is going to make terrible mistakes. It's what they do. They really mess up because they don't know what is correct. They don't know what to do. They don't know what the right thing for them to do is and most of all they do not know who the right people for them are. They get seduced. They're a 3/5.

People come up to them and get hooked on their unconscious 5. They get seduced by their own seduction. They fall into the trap of that person saying, "Oh, you're terrific." You end up being the terrific slave until you don't fulfill that projection, until you're rejected by the other and then you go crashing down and falling on your open Ego. And falling on the open Ego is not a pleasant thing.

The Right: I am Not What I Do

It all has to do with getting rid of the strategic trip. Anyone who is truly strategic, anyone who is on the Left side of the grid, what they do defines them, or what they think defines them. This is what Left-ness is all about. Left-ness is about having a focus. And that focus becomes who you are. I'm Mr. Human Design. I have my focus. This becomes what you are. It defines your nature. So my activity is related to who I am and what I am here to offer.

But that's not true for a Right being. It's not. This Right-ness over here, the Right-mind specifically, the Right says, "Hey, I am not what I do." It's a magical thing to grasp. "I'm not what I do. What I do is a foundation for my outer authority, but I'm not what I do." The doing simply gets done. I love that great saying from the Druids: Do without doing and everything gets done. It's one of those magical things.

This is the example, the shining example of what that is, this is: I'm not doing; the doing gets done. This is the whole activity thing. The doing gets done. The body's got to do something. If you're Left/Left on the Design side, your body's got to do the trip. You have to do something. It's just the way that it is.

PRL/DLL: Right Mind Doesn't Care About Focused View

Example Chart 3

So, here is our second variation. You can see that this is all Left here and here and the only difference is that they are still Right-minded. You can see there is an all Left storyline. And in that all Left storyline, there is that assumption that the storyline, because it is the life, determines the nature of the awareness. It does not, because the mind is not strategic. It isn't.

Now, it goes back to all the same things: dietary regimen, being in the right environment, all of these various things that we have looked at. But here you see the addition of this Left that is here in the sense that this is a being who has a Left focused view. And this focused view is deeply personal. It's this personal view. And this being having this activity level, the active brain, active in their environment and that activity in their environment leading to a very specific personal way of looking at the world.

But it doesn't mean there's anything to be done with that, because as long as you've got a Right-mind, the Right-mind is never going to take any of that seriously. It isn't. The Right-mind doesn't care about all that. Oh how nice that you're busy and focused. It would be the same thing for how nice it is that you're busy and peripheral. I don't care. What I care is that it is collected. That's all. So that I ultimately can be tapped into and in being tapped into can release what is there.

There is no strategic advantage. That's why it's so important to understand that if you're Right-minded, don't get caught up in measuring yourself in relationship to what you do. It's not the point. The only thing that matters is that if what you're doing is correct, it simply means that the awareness you can share with others is an awareness that will be profound for them.

The only difference between what we saw just before and this particular grouping, because of this Left, is that there's simply this deep focus. It means that this is somebody, ultimately, who has an enormous amount of information about a focused thing, an enormous amount of information about a specific focused thing, because they see in that way.

An 18/58 Projector

Everything about this being, because their seeing, their perspective, their view is so personal, it's going to be rooted in the nature of their design. Again, we have a Projector. You can see in the nature of this Projector that they are an 18/58. Not only an 18/58 but with a hanging 48.

One of the things to grasp about this being is that they're here to see what is to be challenged. They're here to see what is to be corrected. It is the very foundation of their power on this plane. And whatever they see that needs to be challenged, and that needs to be corrected is something they see within the context of the way in which our needs and our resources are established.

Seeing Things Personally through the Framework of the Emotional System

Now, all of that for them becomes the way in which ultimately is the personal part of them; they're an emotional being. They see things personally through the framework of their emotional system. You can tell right away that if they're not operating correctly, what a dilemma that this leads to. As a Projector, they are here not simply to be invited, but they have to wait. They have to wait out the wave, they have to be clear, they have to know how to reject others, and they have learn how to say no, not simply say yes, under the pressure of generating.

It all goes back to basics things. It's always the same. It goes back to Strategy and Authority. It goes back to dietary regimen. It goes back to environment. The moment this being is nurturing their active brain, is nurturing their life by being in the correct environment, then their personal focus becomes a masterful thing that leads to this ocean of information that waits for its creative opportunity to release that.

Ultimately what they carry is the power to bring judgment into life, to truly be able to see for the benefit of others, and to be able to release that information, but only when it's tapped into.

Be Healthy in your Process

So, it's not about the mind wondering about what do I know. The Right-minded are always trying to figure out what they know. It's the last thing they need. It's not about it. It's just simply about be healthy in your process, be correct in your process, look after these vehicles, and they will reward you.

Do not be concerned about where your Strategy and Authority takes you. Don't be concerned about what your invitation leads to. Don't be surprised when your invitation leads you to an activity that you did not expect, because the very correctness of your dealing with that invitation through your emotional wave, through that frequency will bring you to an experience that will lead to the kind of depth that will bring to you the fulfillment of your purpose intellectually as a Right being, as somebody who is here to be a resource in this life.

Pay Attention to Dietary Regimen and Love Yourself

Okay, well I hope you enjoyed that. Next week, as I said, I will continue with the next level of this as we move down into this zone. To all of you, pay attention to your dietary regimen. It is one of the most extraordinary things that we have in the knowledge. If we are going to really thrive in the future in a world that will no longer be ours just because we're here, that the health of our immune system, the health of our spirit, to love yourself is so enriching for your spirit, it's so enriching for your health. It's a beautiful thing. So, until next time, all of you, you take care. Bye for now.

Lecture Three

Hello and welcome to all of you. Let's continue with our journey. Again, just as a point of review here. The thing to recognize always about what really divides the Left from the Right is to see clearly that in terms of the way in which this grid is laid out is that it is about the Right-mind. On this side [both right-sided columns PRR and PRL,] all the Personality Sun/Earth activations are Right. And you can see that here [black "Receptive" arrows circled], going all the way through, obviously. When you go to the other side [2 columns on the left side PLL and PLR] you can see it's the exact opposite. They are all Left. So, this is really the dividing line. The dividing line is between the Left-mind and the Right-mind. This is what we draw here as this division.

When we're dealing specifically with the Right side, there are two quadrants we look at.

We look at the upper quadrant, this upper four here because in this upper quadrant where we still are—and we're going to be looking at the second half today—what we're dealing with is the consistency of the Right-mind, but we're dealing with the Left-brain. Beginning next week when we take a look at the lower quadrant, we're going to be dealing with the Right-mind with the Right-brain. So, the dividing line here [horizontal purple line] is the difference between the brain systems. Above you're going to have the Left-brain system and below you're going to have the Right-brain system.

The Intersection

What we're going to begin with and work with today is this area here. Last week we were covering this zone here [above, right upper corner]. I'm going to begin here with the upper right-hand side of the intersection [blue PRL/DLR] and take you back for a moment, because the intersection is something that is deeply, deeply complex. This is where everything seems to meet and bang into each other. We have our natural trajectory here, which is our trajectory in terms of our evolutionary movement moving from all-Left-ness to the all-Right.

We have our dividing line here between the Left-mind and the Right-mind. What we get here in this central system is a confluence, a meeting, of Left-ness and Right-ness that can create real instabilities because basically what you're dealing with is combinations in which you have two and two. Just about all the other configurations have three and one. That is, three of one type and one of the other. When you get into the intersection, you have this balancing system really at work.

The moment you have this balancing system at work—and of course, there are other anomalies in that, the balancing system here as well that you get on the far edges. This balancing system creates the potentials of dilemmas. Dilemmas between Left-mind/Right-brain, Right-brain/Left-mind, and so forth and so on. And as we saw when we were looking at the left side, particularly on the left side, there are real dilemmas that arise here, dilemmas that range from dyslexia to dysphasia, where we have various configurations that can be very, very difficult with children if they're not raised correctly and if their dilemma is not something that is simply understood.

Again, one of the most beautiful things about Human Design knowledge is that by being able to understand the mechanics, we have the ability to be able to work with any kind of configuration, and through the mechanics itself, provide a healthy way in any kind of configuration and through the mechanics itself, provide a healthy way in which that particular Variable, whatever it may be, can flourish. It is not about that a Variable in and of itself can ever be a negative. It really isn't like that. It is simply difference. We are in the difference business. We are in the differentiation business. There's no question that when we're dealing with the intersection, and here we're going to look at the right intersection in the upper right-hand quadrant, that we're dealing with an interesting configuration. You can see it very clearly.

That is, you've got this Right-mind and Left-brain, so you see these arrows pointed away from each other. And then when you're looking at the storyline, when you're looking at the external, when you're looking at the Nodes, you get to see that they're facing each other. That is, the Right on the Design side is facing the Left on the Personality side. So, inherent in this is the potential of real dilemmas, dilemmas in the way in which these beings are going to be educated, dilemmas in the way in which that's going to operate for them, and the way in which their lives are going to be distorted, because most human beings simply do not have the advantage of being able to understand their nature.

PRL/DLR: A Thinker's Variable

Again, what we're going to look at today is that we're going to begin first of all with this particular Variable. And in looking at this Variable, the PRL/DLR, the first thing about it is that it's a thinker's Variable. The easiest way for me to describe this is as the thinker's Variable.

Now of course, as we'll see, because I'll look at individual charts, the way in which that's going to operate obviously can't be something that is simply determined by Variable. After all, Variable is simply a cognitive direction for us. It gives us a cognitive way of understanding what the potential is in the way in which the system is going to be managed, because when we're dealing with the Sun/Earths and the Nodes, in essence, we're dealing with management.

The reason I say this is about the thinker is the combination of a Right-mind—now, we know that the Right-mind is going to be deeply receptive. This is its nature. It's deeply receptive; it's there to take in. But we also have a very active brain. In other words, we have an active brain that is going to need to work. Yet at the same time, that active brain, if we look at the way in which the environment is set up, we can see that the environment is going to be Right, that the environment is going to be passive, and we're dealing with an observer.

So, even though we have an active brain, we have an active brain that needs a great deal of environmental tranquility. It is that environmental tranquility that leads to a Left-focus perspective. In other words, you're really dealing with the ideal configuration for those who are going to be physically not active in their environment, but by saying 'physically not active' it doesn't mean that their brains aren't going to be active.

What their brains are going to be active with is ultimately with their focus. This Right-ness that is there environmentally simply means that they are going to heal-thiest when they are environmentally calm; in other words, when they are able to be the observer, when they physically don't have to go through a great deal of activity in order to be able to focus their attention and to be able to give this active brain something to process. So, here what you're dealing with is an ideal of the thinker's configuration.

Example Chart 4

Now, how that operates individually is what we're going to take a look at and we'll begin with this chart. Again, take the example of the way in which configurations operate. There are different kinds of thinkers. The classic intellectual is the being who has an open Ajna and an open Head Center. The dilemma of the open Ajna and the open Head Center—and given the child, speaking in terms of your design as a child—with the Right-ness you have, the fact is that the conditioning of your environment is conditioning you to this whole strategic, the way in which to organize, all of that. And of course you have a Left-brain that is going to be very susceptible to wanting a mind that is going to be conditioned, that is going to be conditioned to its Left-ness.

Given that this is a totally open mental system, the conditioning that's taking place here, the conditioning in the open Ajna Center in this demand for certainty, that you have to be certain, and digging into things in order to find that certainty and all those things that go with it. And of course, you're a 5/1 so the investigation or the investigative aspect of that is obviously part of it.

What's interesting here is, in a way, you're saved by the fact that you're a split-definition. One of the things we know about split-definitions is that they are not dominated by Center conditioning. They're dominated by gate conditioning. And of course, the prominent gate conditioning you have here is the 10th gate and the 31st gate. So, the strongest conditioning is on trying to find behavior that allows you to lead, to discover the perfected form that opens up your alpha, in that sense.

Again, what's interesting about that is that it brings about the release of this initiating energy and moves all of this initiating energy as a Manifestor. Curiously enough, as a child, this whole drive to manifest the strategic and to manifest the strategic intellectually becomes a kind of false talent that is there in your design, and a way in which to create a kind of mask that really just simply covered over what was really possible for you.

Given the knowledge you have at this point in your process, the work that you do, the way in which you focus your intelligence from what is relatively a passive environment, passive in the sense that you're sitting at a desk, as an example, and working, that the computer age is something that is deeply delightful for this particular configuration. It allows you to be able to do the things that are important for your intellectual development that don't require the same kind of activity as in the past.

For example, research. The Internet is a great boon for those with a Right environment. They don't have to go out to the library, or they don't have to go wherever it is that they would have to go to do their physical research. In fact, they can do all that from the comfort of their favorite chair. That really makes an enormous difference in terms of conserving the Right physicality.

The thing to realize about having a Right environment means you can't afford to be cranked up. This is something that is very, very important. And of course, one of the things that really helps this is dietary regimen. Dietary regimen is something that is going to be very important. After all, it is so for everyone, but again, remember that with Right-ness, everything about dietary regimen is that dietary regimen works on the brain system. It's so healing, or aligning, as I like to put it, for the brain system.

So, this becomes something that is deeply, deeply important when you have this kind of combination in which you need to be able to have the proper nourishment for an active brain, yet not the kind of nourishment that leads to the impulse for activity, the drive for high levels of activity which are not going to be productive.

Again, it's one of those things be clear about environmentally. When you step into an environment and the environment immediately brings about compulsiveness, immediately brings a need to get into activity, it is something, clearly, that is going to be detrimental in terms of your well-being and ultimately is going to take away from your thinking time, your intellectual processing time.

Example Chart 5

Okay, interesting, no? Obviously, in this case we are dealing with a Manifestor. One of the advantages of being a Manifestor, even though it is a journey for you to discover the power of this manifesting because it is all unconscious, the Manifestor has that potential to be able to act out in defiance of whatever is expected. After all, it is one of the things about being a Manifestor that you don't have to be at the mercy of the other.

Being a single-definition Manifestor is something that can be very advantageous in making sure that you maintain what is correct for you environmentally. You're a cave person, which also adds to the importance of the intellectual development that is possible for you in the cave. It's also interesting that you have aspects of, because you're a 6/3, you have aspects of the right angle Cross of Consciousness. It's just interesting to see that that is part and parcel of the way in which this particular Variable can be advantaged by the openness of the of the mental system and the intellectuality that arises out of that.

It is serendipitous that just the other day Eileen sent me an analysis of all the exaltations and detriments, which I'm going to make available to students, and Lynda, by the way, I'm going to make that available to you so you can pass it along to analysts in training because it's a fabulous piece of information, just to be able to see at a glance the way in which exaltations and detriments operate in the line fixings and to see what planets dominate and how they dominate, where they dominate. It's a classic piece of work from this kind of Variable. [Eileen's research is included in the Library at the end of this book.]

As a matter of fact, each and every one of you, it's so obvious to me that this is so much a part of the way in which you operate. It is evidence of the pure intellectuality that is inherent in this kind of Variable. But you can see something about it. The thing that's so interesting is that because it is Right-minded, it means that you have to have somebody who, in that sense, sponsors you.

What I mean by that is that everyone who has this kind of Variable, if they're going to be able to fulfill themselves in this life, it's not just simply that they have a way in which intellectually they're going to gather and focus information. But because they're Right-minded, they can't just get it out. The only way they're going to be able to get that out, as with all Right-minded beings, is if there's somebody that's going to draw on it.

In that comes a natural direction to teaching. It's just one of those things. And when I say teaching, teaching doesn't have to be formal as I do it, as an example. It can be done in different ways. For example, Andrea, who is part of this group, obviously is a teacher and a very fine teacher. Becky does all this work in providing all of my students with books they can use. All of this is a way in which that Right-ness is called out.

Remember the thing about your Right-mind is that it's creative. The creativity of the Right-ness has to be called upon. And of course, whether or not you get into the right situation, because this is the great dilemma for anybody who carries Right-ness, it really is. It's the great dilemma. The dilemma is if you're not operating correctly, and that means operating according to what is your design, your Strategy, your Authority, because again, the one thing that the Right-mind can't do is strategize.

When you look at the differences between the Right with this Right-mindedness and the Left with its Left-mindedness, in essence the Right is so much more ready for Strategy and Authority than the Left because without it they're deeply handicapped, and without it they get stuck trying to mimic the way in which the Left-mind operates.

It is an extraordinary boom for those who are on the Right to have this mechanism in which Strategy and Authority is not something that has to be developed mentally, because it isn't. You don't need to develop a mental strategy. You don't need to develop that mental strategizing that was inculcated in you in your education, the way you were conditioned, the way in which that conditioning really warped your potential. The fact of the matter is that being on the Right, being Right-minded, opens up this tremendous relief. "Ah, I don't have to deal with that anymore. I don't have to deal with that anymore because quite frankly, I have my body and my body is going to carry the Strategy for me."

This is the way in which inherently it's going to work. So, the moment there is a Strategy and Authority, that Strategy and Authority is going to lead you into those associations that are going to lead to the potential of that capacity in you, the intellectual capacity, the intellectual capacity rooted in the way in which this system operates and being able to find in your bonds, in your relationships, a way in which this information can then come out.

That's the thing ultimately that brings the great reward. The reward not just simply for yourself. After all, the child with the Right-mind often feels deeply, deeply insecure about their intellectual capacity. Once one is correct and one is fulfilling one's potential and there are those who are going to draw on that, and it becomes something very, very special. It finally gives you that possibility to do what I am constantly encouraging everyone that I have contact with: to love yourself. To love yourself is the most extraordinary thing.

You never can fool yourself when it comes to self-love. Self-love can never be bullshit. It's either there or it's not there. In this kind of configuration it arises out of the recognition that what you carry within you truly is of value to the other. And that in the correctness of the way in which you operate, that other is going to be there. They are. They're going to be there, they're going to tap into that resource. And in that, you're going to find a great deal of satisfaction.

Example Chart 6

One of the most fascinating things is always to watch the way in which continuities operate. Here we're dealing with a very powerful energy Projector with these two channels from the Root Center to the emotional system. But you have all this openness. The moment you have single-definition, the Centers take on enormous power. In the Centers being able to take on this kind of enormous power, the power to distort, the power to condition, one of the things to keep in mind is the influence that is there in these children, because obviously they're not being raised correctly. And they're not going to schools where their Right-ness is recognized at all.

And not only that, but think about what's natural for this child. You have a Projector. It's a non-energy type. You have a Projector who is supposed to be passive in its environment. It's interesting that this is also another cave environment. This is a child who is constantly going to be under pressure to be active: Go out and play, dear. Stop looking at that thing, or stop reading that book, or stop doing whatever it is you're doing that keeps you so passive. Why don't you go out there and do something? Stop sitting there and just staring out the window; go do something strategic, go do something active otherwise, you're not going to be a healthy girl. And there are all your little friends who are calling you to come out and play and do all of those things.

Think about it. Really grasp what it is; and again, understand something. This whole concept that children have to have all kinds of exercise and they have to be out there running around, and this and that, that's not true. It's not. One of the things I love about being a heretic is to be able to cut through such nonsense. That's homogenization.

If you have a Left environment, yes, you're here to be active in your environment. That's what it's about. You're here to be active. It's very important for you to move your body and move around and do the things you do, and you need an environment that is going to encourage that. But, that's not true for everyone. Not everyone has a Left Nodal environment on the Design side; these are the beings who have to be active and running around.

We have this terrible, terrible conditioning that we do to children. We homogenize them so quickly, let alone that this poor child, the way in which you were going to be raised, this whole thing about being a Projector: Oh, but you can't be like that. You can't. You're supposed to be a Manifestor. You're supposed to do things. You're supposed to get up there and be active. And on top of that, you're supposed to be strategic.

It's so easy for the life to just be distorted. Here you're dealing with The Prophet. But the beautiful thing or the sad thing about the 12.4, because everything has a "this and that," on one side you can arouse the stagnant, and on the other side you're the voice in the wilderness and nobody is listening. It's all lost. And it's so easy for it to be lost.

Again, it goes back to basics. It always goes back to basics. First of all, if you're Right, your dietary regimen is something that is absolutely essential. It's just essential. You need to heal your brain. You need to realign your brain system. You need to bring your brain system into continuity with the rest of your design.

It doesn't matter that you have a Left-brain. You have to have a Left-brain that operates correctly according to your holistic nature. That can only happen if you're following the dietary regimen. It could only happen if you're eating in calm, because that's basically what that is. This is something that is really going to make a difference because it is the aligning of the brain system that is really going help.

The other thing is that it's not up to you with this Right-mind to develop the strategies for what you're going to do in this life, where you're going to do it, who you're going to do it with, when you're going to do it, how you're going to do it, and all that other stuff. Forget it. Because all that does is just fill you with a great deal of despondency, potentially very depressive, potentially very uncomfortable. And this is a design that is bound to have, when it's not correct, all kinds of food problems.

The first thing that has to happen for this being is that they have to align their physical system so their physical system operates correctly, that they take in the right nutrition, that they provide for themselves in a way in which they are going to begin the healing, begin the alignment of their whole system. The decisions about how you do this or that, or where it's going to be, or who you're going to do it with, you're a Projector. This is an emotional Projector who's here to be invited and wait for that invitation.

It's only in waiting for that invitation, and only waiting over time, because after all we're dealing with an emotional being, it's only then that you can truly find what is correct. And again, notice, another cave person. That's two in a row. Two cave beings with open Ajna and Head. It's just interesting to see the way in which these configurations operate. I'm going to have to pass that one along to Adrian and see if he can give me some stats on that, because that's already rather curious.

Example Chart 7

Genetic continuity is an amazing thing. Genetic continuity is just incredible. Here you have this thinking Variable and you have all these beings who are given an open mental system so they can be deeply intellectual and not be fixed. The first thing that the strategic schooling system does is try to fix you. The first thing your parents do is try to align you to a direction that they want for you. This is the thing that always happens to Right children.

Right children—their parents don't get it; obviously, they don't know what's going on. They're not informed. They're not aware. So, they take on the whole strategic thing for their children and decide what their children are going to be and they decide where their children are going to go and so forth and so on. Of course, they end up being robbed of what is this deep, deep possibility.

Now, here is an interesting variation because we're not dealing with the 1 [cave,] but we're still also dealing with the lower Colors, we are dealing with the hardscape. Again, it's just something that's interesting. Hardscape is going to bring you into more contact with more stimulation than landscape does. Hardscape is going to bring you many, many more things to process, in that sense. But the intellectuality of this particular Variable has to find its creative outlet. This is the whole thing about Right-mindedness.

I've been looking at all of this stuff for very long time. It's so interesting for me, how Right-ness represents a whole new potential in our species. I'm fortunate in my own way that at least I have one aspect of Right-ness because I'm deeply Left and deeply strategic. But I have a Right perspective. What I notice about my Right perspective is that it is the most creative part of me. No matter where I've looked in analyzing my own configurations and trying to understanding—I am a creative being and I'm a pure individual, so I carry a lot of creative individuality. The control panel has to be able to reflect that.

What I get to see about it is that it is just my seeing. It is just this perspective; this Right perspective is where all of my creative power comes from. So, when I look at somebody who is Right-minded, there is a part of me, given all my 1st lines, that's really in awe of that. Because I look at it and I see, wow, what an incredible creative depth there is to that conceptualizing capacity.

It's far beyond what I have in my Left-mind. I'm Left-mind, Left-brain. I'm really good at being able to focus. This is what I get to do. What I focus best on is an image, what I'm doing right now. I focus on the image and in focusing on the image I get my Right perspective working and I get to see things that nobody else gets to see. That's my magic.

And then I look at these Right-minded beings and they're looking mentally, conceptually. They're processing things that in that sense nobody else processes, that nobody else conceptualizes. It doesn't mean that every single one of them is here to discover. It was interesting to note, Chart 7 is a 3/6. If I go back, Chart 6 is a 4/6. If I go back, Chart 5 is a 6/3. The only one who isn't [no 3rd or 6th line profile] is Chart 4, but then again, she is on the Cross of Individualism and they're always out of sync with patterns. So, it is a correct anomaly.

But it's just interesting to note the values that are there. It's fascinating to see the serendipity of the way in which these things work. The moment you're dealing with the 3/6 as an example, you're dealing with an extraordinary potential—or the 6/3—for discovery. The discovery is just there. It's inherent in that. So you end up in a genetic continuity with the potential of discovery in an intellectual framework with an open mental system that is here to the intellectual. The only thing that is necessary is for these beings to align themselves to those forces that are going to tap into what they have.

When you think about the four of you and your involvement in Human Design, Human Design, as you well know, is an incredible intellectual cornucopia. You can go on and on and on and on and deeper and deeper and deeper and deeper and deeper and the serendipity in that sense of being involved in something like that, and at the same time having that become the creative outlet, to be able to take this new science and to take the knowledge of this new science and to begin to distill it with this unusual capacity to conceptualize.

The only thing missing is the other. This is where Strategy and Authority comes in. This is the thing that saves you. It gives you that capacity within the vehicle itself to align yourself to those correct forces. This is just what it does. It aligns you to those correct forces and it's those forces that are going to tap into those resources that you're developing out of this combination, out of this kind of intellectual potential. It's a fascinating Variable.

Distortions in Variables

But something else; I've given you the exalted of this, after all. I know you. I know the work you do. I know your intellectual capacity. I've experienced that from those of you I know in this Variable and it's quite obvious to me that capacity is there. But I want you to think about how devastating this is to the not-self with not-self parents. You can go back in your own memories. And even that isn't really correct, because, in fact, you were born with a geometry that was going to lead you to the fractal that was going to open up all of this possibility for you. After all, there are no choices in this.

You think about those children who carry a configuration like this who will never be given that opportunity. And if 6s are something we're going to see as a theme that is going to run through this, or 3s for that matter, oh boy, they're not to get any chance at all. It's just going to turn messy for them. These are children who are going to be deeply, deeply manipulated by their parents, deeply manipulated by their parents, which is going to create other problems on top of that.

So, it's beautiful to look at what is possible in a Variable, but it's also deeply, deeply important to understand the way in which this is distorted and the way in which this can lead to such discomfort, true discomfort, and deep not-self in beings who don't have the opportunity to grasp this, or don't have the kind of parenting that can make such an extraordinary difference for them by being able to treat them correctly, by being able to work with them in a way that is going to—it's one of things I think about all the time. The development of the nine-centered being is so much in the hands of parents. That first seven years, this is one of the great keys.

The more this knowledge goes outward, the greater the possibility that we're going to be able to have children who are really raised according to their nature and particularly these Right-minded children so they can have the possibility to really flourish and to be able to flower into the fundamental creativity that is their nature.

PRR/DLR: What You Do is Not Your Key

Now, obviously, there is a difference here when I was talking about the 3s. You can see that this [yellow PRR/DLR] is very different in the sense that this is not about having the deep focus. It's not about having the focus. Again, this combination of the active brain and the focus with the Right-mind and the observer environmentally [blue PRL/DLR] is deeply, deeply intellectual in its nature.

But, this here is very different [yellow PRR/DLR]. And it's very different in the sense that these are beings in which what they do is not their key. Again, this is something that's very, very important to grasp about this. Most people who have this Variable, what they do is totally disconnected from their intellectual capacity. In other words, it's not aligned.

If I look at this Variable here [blue PRL/DLR], what these beings take in, they are here to share and teach, specifically, because they have a focus. But there is no focus over here [yellow PRR/DLR]. There isn't. For these beings, what they are taking in—and they're taking things in in a very, very, very deep way—is that they're living an entirely new life and they're not aware of it. This is the whole difference.

One of the things you get to see with this Variable in relationship to this one is that this Variable [yellow PRR/DLR] is always trying to be like this one [blue PRL/DLR]; always. The way [PRR/DLR tries to be like PRL/DLR] works out in the way people are conditioned, because this Variable over here still has an aspect of the strategic life here. Again, when we're looking at these configurations, we're looking at two things. What we're looking at below, which is called the external, this is the storyline. This is the life you're dropped into. And here you can see that this is a Left/Right life [blue PRL/DLR]. So there's still this relationship within the Personality to Left-ness. And there is a relationship within the body system to Left-ness.

But here, the storyline is all-Right [yellow PRR/DLR]. The moment the storyline is all-Right, it means that that life itself is something that needs to become very, very different. There is no formal way in which this needs to work [yellow PRR/DLR]. Here there is a need for some kind of formality [blue PRL/DLR]; there is a need to be slotted into a certain way in which the work that you do gets realized.

And here, it's very different. So for example, you could be doing one thing, whatever that thing is—and again, we'll talk about that because it's a question of Strategy and Authority—but whatever that thing is isn't necessarily what you're taking in and what you're processing. It can be totally different from what you're taking in and processing.

Example Chart 8

So, let's begin. This is one of those patterns that I've always enjoyed seeing. It's an interesting pattern. This is about succeeding or failing in the now. This is an incredibly spontaneous chart. It's one of the most fascinating things about this kind of a configuration. Again, you have certain keys that are built into that. In other words, you see this continuity that we seem to have in this combination of what is the Left-brain and the Right-mind, this potential for the deep intellectuality.

There's no question about it that there is this potential the moment you combine these. But it's separate from what the life is all about. In other words, whatever wisdom can be derived from this design doesn't mean that these are beings who will necessarily teach it. It doesn't mean that they will necessarily find some kind of formal venue in order to be able to bring it out.

As a matter of fact, their whole intake process is totally separate from whatever their life process happens to be. This is about being passive and peripheral, this combination of being in your environment. Again, it's a hardscape environment—it's also a 6, as we see—being in a hardscape environment, but being very, very sedentary. Not a lot of movement. This is not about a lot of movement. It's very, very important to recognize that when you're in the right environment, the right environment is going to relax you. And given that relaxation, it opens up the potential for this deep peripheral seeing.

connected to what you are doing. Whenever I look at the Right/Right storyline, basically what you're looking at is a creative force. You're looking at a creative force that emerges out of mundane action. Everybody needs their mundane action. Without mundane action we are lost. We need to feed ourselves, clothe ourselves, all the things we have to do in our lives.

So, one of the dilemmas for somebody like this is that without the Strategy, because again they are not capable of devising strategies. As a matter of fact, this is the thing that destroys their creativity. The moment they have their Strategy working for them, obviously we have a pure Manifesting Generator that is here to operate in the now. It can't be more specific, moment-to-moment-to-moment.

Everything about this is that in responding to what is their moment-to-moment, that that is just simply responding to life. It has nothing to do with what the intellectual or the resource is going to be. Only when you tap into these beings are you going to get to see how rich their well is, how much they have taken in, how much in fact they've absorbed. The great dilemma for these beings in their life, and it is true for all of them, is the pressure that is placed on them when they are young to define their life by what they do.

The only thing that matters about your doing is that your doing supports you. In other words, that your doing feeds you, that your doing shelters you; this is what it's about. It doesn't matter whether the doing is exalted or not. It doesn't matter whether you have a profession, a career, a "this," a "that." It doesn't matter about titles and all of these things. None of those things are significant.

As a matter of fact, the only thing that is important for a being in a Right/Right storyline is that their doing is correct, and it comes from their body.

Every single being who has this kind of level of Right-ness needs to immediately begin to experiment with their dietary regimen. It's interesting. I'm doing a lecture on Saturday [July 18, 2009] which is called Radical Transformation. Radical transformation begins with dietary regimen. You want to change your life? You want to be able to operate truly correctly as yourself and you want to reach your full potential, you cannot do it without the correct dietary regimen. You simply can't.

In your particular case, when you're dealing with the 2 and the desert island diet, it is so important not just simply to eat the same things every day, but the same things down to the minutia. If you like a certain kind of product, whatever it is, the same product over and over and over again, the only variation it could be in the diet like this is a seasonal variation; a difference from one season to another is so you have a certain amount of change that can take place in the diet.

You have a very primitive dietary regimen. It means that this Left-brain, if it's not fed correctly, tries to dominate your whole system. It tries to make you Left, because of course you come from a time and an era where you would have been raised deeply into Left-ness, conditioned for strategy, all of those things. And the fact is that this is the design of a being who is here to be able to conceptualize, to actually be able to see things that others truly do not see. And yet, it doesn't come out of what the specific work happens to be.

Again, this is the whole thing about the Right life. If you're operating correctly according to your Strategy and Authority, you're going to be able to do the mundane life. You have to be able to do that. This is where the Right fails. This is where the Right gets totally condemned, because what happens to you when you're a Right being is that you don't have the skills.

Most Right beings have problems with money until they get this process, if they're lucky enough, and if they're really connected to this process, because the Right isn't here to make money. They don't know what the hell that is. They don't. Unless they are deeply, deeply lucky in this life and it is handed to them, this is not something they're good at, because it's not what the Right is all about. They're not strategic.

Example Chart 9

The moment you're in this life is the moment that—we live in a strategic world dominated by strategic processes, dominated by strategic institutions, dominated by strategic pressure. There's this incredible pressure on the being: What are you going to do with your talent? You have to do something with your talent. Go out there and make a living. Go out there and do something—all that stuff that comes.

And yet, the reality is that only when you are operating physically out of your Strategy and Authority, only then do you have the capacity to actually find a way on this material plane. It's the only thing that will help you. Right-mind is so far away from material strategy. It's so far away. If you try to be Left and you try to strategize about what you're going to do and how you're going to do it and you're going to make money here and there—yeah, yeah, yeah, right.

All it brings you is headaches. All it brings you is dilemmas. And isn't it fascinating that every single one of the charts tonight in this frame all have open Ajna and open Head Centers. There is this incredible potential for intellectual depth. After all, this is Right-ness at its creative best. And yet, you have to be able to live the Right life. And the Right life is not about strategy. It's not. It's not about "what you do is where your power comes from, where your greatness comes from." It's the creative resource that's pulled from you that makes the difference.

If it happens that what you do opens up the possibility for you to release your creativity, it's only the case because you've been operating correctly and you're operating according to your Strategy and Authority, because that's the only thing that's going to do that for you. It will align you to those forces that will tap into your creative resource and transform the way in which you operate in the world and provide for you at the same time.

And again, the key for the Right is dietary regimen. Dietary regimen is so important. It's like there should be a huge neon sign blaring out in front of any Right-minded being that's saying to them: Look, if you don't eat right, you're not going to make it, because dietary regimen is an absolute key to this.

First of all, in this configuration you're dealing with a Left-brain. Again, the tendency of the Left-brain in a Right vehicle is to be overactive. The moment it's overactive, it's going to demand things. You can already see that this is a being who is going to have a weak stomach. It's a stomach that's going to be under pressure. This is an open emotional system that is going to create all kinds of potential problems in terms of the way in which digestion takes place, all of these things.

It is simply something to understand about what dietary regimen does. It's alright to have a Left-brain with all this Right-ness if it operates in association, in relationship to that. It's only going to do that when it is nourished correctly. There is no other way. This is the most important step that anyone who is Right can take. And it doesn't matter when in your life. The moment that it's correct for you, this is the thing that is really going to make a difference. It is going to allow you to align yourself to what is really correct for you.

Now again, you can see that because it's a Right storyline, it means that the way in which your body functions—again, you have a Projector. There are four open motors. You're not intended to run around. You're not intended to be over-cranked.

That's not what you're about. You're about being in the right environment and in being in that right environment, finding what is your point of relaxation so that you can be passive in your environment and take in peripherally all of those things that are there for you to take in.

Whatever the process is, if you're waiting for that invitation, not just simply that the right way to fulfill your material destiny will come to you, but those beings who are going to tap into the creative resources that are there. Having a Left-brain with these three aspects of Right-ness means that you're giving your brain an enormous amount of information to work with; an enormous amount of information to work with.

This is the real key. If you're nourishing this brain system correctly so you get rid of all of that homogenized stuff that was pumped into you from the moment you came into the world, you begin to align your brain to your vehicle, to your whole holistic life, and that's the moment you're really going to be able to work with all this creative input that's there. The only thing you need after that, the only thing you need in order to be able to release your talent is that you need the right people in your life to recognize you. You only get that through Strategy and Authority. There isn't any other way.

What an interesting field that is, isn't it, all that potential intellectuality, all that depth that is there, what I like to call the cosmic ocean. It is so deep and so still and so beautiful when it's correct. This is the wonder of it. And so much of that has to do with putting the body in its right direction finally, giving the vehicle what it's crying out for, which is proper care. This is the whole thing about Right-ness and all of these beings who are on the Right side. They cannot survive in a Left world unless they have a strategic way of operating.

It's the beauty of the knowledge. It gives you the tool. It gives you the tool to allow you to live your Right-ness. Not only to live your Right-ness, but to mature into your Right-ness. And to be able to be in that position where your creative resources are recognized, are discovered, they're asked for, they're invited, all of those things. This is the beauty of what it is to be Right.

Again, you can see the great waste in a sense in the not-self of the deep intellectuality that is here in this frame that doesn't become that at all. It becomes distorted by this combination of Left-brain/Right-mind, that the unhealthy Left-brain overwhelms the Right-mind, conditions it because of the conditioning around it to be Left in its nature. And of course, in that, all the potential of the being is lost.

It's so interesting when you think about it, that there is more resistance to Strategy and Authority on the Left than there is on the Right. It's quite a thing to actually grasp. The beauty is there for you who are Right. Particularly those of you, because we will see as we enter next week into these combinations of denser and denser Right-ness, that if you're going to live the new life, you can only do that through Strategy and Authority, or you're going to be deeply conditioned and your body and your intellectuality in the end is what's going to suffer.

Well, I hope you all enjoyed that. Thank you for participating. Next week we will go into the quadrant below and we will discover what's there. All right, to all of you, you take care. Until next time, bye for now.

Lecture Four

Hello everyone, nice to see you, and welcome. You can see that we're entering into something else. We're entering into the final quadrant that is there in the Variable grid and we are entering into the realm of the Right-mind and the Right-brain.

In dealing with that, there's something to keep in mind. We've been dealing with the nature of Right-ness and we have already gone through the upper right quadrant, the quadrant that is related specifically to what is left of the human evolutionary track. And obviously, when we come down into this zone, we're really moving towards what is the real future in terms of the Right-ness that ultimately will emerge in the nature of the Rave.

Yet at the same time, I want you to look at this from another perspective, because obviously what we need to look at is how that impacts us in our lives. It isn't just about some abstract future that has to do with creatures that have nothing to do with us. It has to do with the way in which we live with these configurations and the way in which we can maximize the advantages that these particular Variables give to each of us.

The Independent and the Dependent Variables

No Variable is a handicap when one is equipped with awareness and one can operate according to their Strategy and Authority. But this lower quadrant brings certain pressures. The first thing to look at is the way in which it gets divided. That is, whenever you're looking at a Variable, you're looking at a Variable that has two aspects. That is, the lower aspects. These are Nodal and they're referred to as the Independent Variable, these two arrows. [See page 16.]

	PLL	PLR	PRL	PRR
DLL	ACTIVE ← STRATEGIC OBSERVED → FOCUSED	ACTIVE ← STRATEGIC OBSERVED → PERIPHERAL	ACTIVE ← RECEPTIVE OBSERVED → FOCUSED	ACTIVE ← RECEPTIVE OBSERVED → PERIPHERAL
DLR	ACTIVE ← STRATEGIC OBSERVED → FOCUSED	ACTIVE ← STRATEGIC OBSERVED → PERIPHERAL	ACTIVE ← RECEPTIVE OBSERVED → FOCUSED	ACTIVE ← RECEPTIVE OBSERVED → PERIPHERAL
DRL	PASSIVE → STRATEGIC OBSERVED → FOCUSED	PASSIVE → STRATEGIC OBSERVED → PERIPHERAL	PASSIVE → RECEPTIVE OBSERVED → FOCUSED	PASSIVE → RECEPTIVE OBSERVED → PERIPHERAL
DRR	PASSIVE → STRATEGIC OBSERVED → FOCUSED	PASSIVE → STRATEGIC OBSERVED → PERIPHERAL	PASSIVE → RECEPTIVE OBSERVED → FOCUSED	PASSIVE → RECEPTIVE OBSERVED → PERIPHERAL

And when we're looking at the upper, the upper is called the Dependent Variable. Now, that already tells you something rather extraordinary. It says that the mind and the brain are dependent on the storyline. That is, it is dependent on the direction that the life is going to take.

I try to stress, particularly in developing this language and moving this language into the public domain, that beyond the importance of PHS and dietary regimen is a deep understanding of the significance of environment. When you see environment within the context of being the Independent Variable, the environment establishes what a life is going to be. The brain and the mind are there for the ride. They are dropped into whatever the life story is all about.

PRL/DRL: The Intersection

The first thing that you get to see when you enter into this lower quadrant is an anomaly. That anomaly is here in the zone that is called the intersection. If you remember from our earlier discussions the intersection is this central quadrant, and the central quadrant is where you have this confluence of the various dynamics that are there. I think one of the most fascinating of these four Variables that are in the central quadrant is here [white star].

What you're seeing is that you have a Right-brain and a Right-mind, but you've got a totally Left life. It's just interesting to think about that in this lower quadrant where everything ultimately is moving to Rightness, so that when you get to this side you have three Rights and one Left, you get to this and you have three Rights and one Left [pink stars,] and then ultimately you have the all-Right [green star].

So, in this quadrant [white star,] the only anomaly, the only thing that is really holding onto the pattern of the way in which life has always been, at least as far as our memories can discern it, is that it is holding onto this Left-ness. You can see that in this intersection and in this particular Variable, that you have is very distinct movement to the Right that is part of the Dependent Variable, but the Independent Variable is entirely Left.

This represents something that is rather odd. Now, it doesn't bring the same dynamics or tensions, for example that you have in these where you have this difference between Left-brain/Right-brain function. But it has a relationship here to what is a dyslexic field up above on the left side [image below, yellow PLR/DLR] and you can see here with the all Left-brain system dropped into a Right life. And here, we're looking at the all-Right mental system dropped into a Left life [orange PRL/DRL].

Deep Conditioning Tension

It doesn't bring the same dilemma. That is, it doesn't bring the same dyslexia as a potential. But what it does do is create perhaps the deepest conditioning tension. What I mean by that is because you have an entirely Left life process, you have this Right-brain/Right-mind system that is being dropped into this Left life [orange PRL/DRL]. Of course, the pressure then, the incredible pressure is for these beings to develop strategic skills.

As I have mentioned and I think that it is one of the things to really see is that whenever we are looking at any being's potential to have a viable process in this life, it begins with Strategy and Authority. When you're dealing with the intensity of Right-ness, that is, for any being who is particularly mentally Right, so obviously everything that is on the right-hand side of the graphing, anyone who's mentally Right, but particularly those that are brain and mind oriented to the Right, their dietary regimen is extraordinarily important for them. But their real key is their Strategy and Authority.

Because the one thing that the Right is not equipped for is to develop unique strategies. It's not. As a matter of fact, the best it can do is be deeply conditioned by the world around them and try to copy, in a sense, the strategic systems that it gets to see. Most of that is coming from parents, educators, your lovers, all those kinds of things in which the Right tries to take on the costume of Left-ness, and it becomes quite a disaster.

So, when we're looking here, and this is what we're going to begin with, we're dealing with something very extreme. Without the benefit of Strategy and Authority, this is an area where there is going to be a lot of dilemma. The dilemma is going to be the level of mental conditioning.

My deepest concern is for children. We have this incredible opportunity, given the nature of this knowledge, to be able to provide guidance for both parents and their children who are carrying this level of Right-ness, because they are being deeply contaminated by the world around them. They're being forcibly conditioned to develop strategic concepts, strategic ways of dealing with the world around them through the mental plane. All that is very, very unhealthy for them.

The deeper they go into trying to be strategic, the more uncomfortable they become with the nature of their potential because they can't see it. The moment you have somebody who is Right-brained and Right-minded and they're trying to develop mental strategies is the moment they are putting themselves at a disadvantage in their life. Not only are they putting themselves at a disadvantage, but that disadvantage is going to feed on various aspects in their design, and various aspects in their openness.

Example Chart 10

Let's begin this journey and I'm going to follow along with the designs that I have. Here is a classic example of what I mean. Here you have this very powerful Right-brain/Right-mind, which as we understand, this is both a passive brain and it is a deeply, deeply receptive mind. And everything about the essence of this being is that their whole mental system is designed simply to be a sponge. It's designed to just take it in and take it in and take it in and take it in, because that's really what it's all about.

When we're dealing with the Design side and the PHS, we're dealing with the whole Design mechanism that the brain system is something that needs this environment. It is dependent on it. Here we have that Dependent Variable that is going to be dependent on that Independent Variable, it's going to be dependent on the way in which the life story is going to unfold, and the life story unfolds environmentally.

Now obviously, the inner world is something that is going to be very important to this being, an inner world in which there is an activity in that inner world that leads to a unique focus. That is, a focus that is deeply personal, a focus that is unique, that the world is seen through one's own unique lens.

When you have a cave person who has a personal way of looking at the world, there is an ingrained isolation built into that. Now, it's interesting in the continuity of this design, you're dealing with the Cross of Individualism and these beings are usually quite isolated because they have a great difficulty of being able to fit in. And so it is an interesting thing to see that if you surrender to what is environmentally correct for you that you establish a way in which your Right-ness is going to work.

What that means is that personal cave perspective that is so much a foundation of this life allows for this brain system and its mental conceptualizing capacity to be able to mature in a correct way, which means that it is simply taking in. It isn't doing anything else. One of the things to grasp about Right-brain/Right-mind is that it's not your brain and your mind that can ever run your life for you. It can't. It is not equipped to do so. It's the last place on earth you should be looking for help. It comes down to the physical life you have.

One of the most beautiful things about grasping the essence of Nodes is being able to see that what the Nodes represent is the way in which you physically fit into your life. It's the physicality of your life. It is the form principle. The beauty of the knowledge is that we have the tools for being able to align the form principle to what is correct for it.

So here, for example, in this shift—it's always interesting; I keep on noticing this as we move along. It's very rare to see the Right-minded—from what I've seen—having mental definition. It's quite unusual. So it is just interesting to follow this process and look at this. I'm slowly getting statistics from Adrian on these things and it's fascinating to look at this. And eventually, I will as I process them and share them with you.

Example Chart 11

But again, another example of this, here you have another cave person with another way of looking, of being able to see from their cave from that protection of that environment, the possibilities that are out there, and being focused on all of those possibilities. Now, that's a fascinating thing when you put it into its juxtaposition with this kind of Right-ness.

Let's think about the Right-ness for a moment. If you have a Right-brain, you have a deeply mutated brain. Your brain's mutated. It is so different from our ancestors, the seven-centered being. It is very different from fellow Homo sapiens in Transitus. It is a very unusual thing to have a Right-brain. The thing about the Right-brain is that where it's different is in the visual cortex. This is where the mutation took place.

So, rather than the emphasis being on the external focusing, this is a brain that is simply about storage. It is about the capacity to be able to take in a tremendous amount of information. The passive that we use as a keynote should never be misunderstood. If you have to focus the brain, if you've got a Left-brain, it takes a tremendous amount of energy, the focusing, because it really is a physical act to focus, to align to that focus, to hold the focus, to store a very, very specific line of memory to that focus. All of that is work. All of that takes a great deal of energy to be able to do it.

Now, the mutation of the Ajna, the mutation of the visual cortex did something rather incredible when it comes to the receptive brain. This passive brain basically has eliminated the need for all of that energy. That's really quite remarkable. This is a brain that doesn't require the same level of energy, which means that it doesn't require the same volume of nutrition in order to maintain its functioning capacity. It is very, very different because what it has done is that in removing this focusing, it has opened up to simply a channeling system. Basically what happens in the mutated Right-brain is that information is simply being channeled.

When I say channeling, all I'm talking about is—imagine that you have a border crossing or tollbooths on a highway, and you've got all of these various cars that are coming, basically what's happening in this kind of a brain is that it's opening up certain ways for certain information to move. It's allowing all of it to move, but it's coordinating it by allowing it to move into different areas and simply loading it up in those areas, storing it.

So rather than this being an active grabbing something, focusing on it, denying everything else, you have this extraordinary opening up and taking in, this vast capacity for storage. Now, in dealing with that, right away this being, any being that has this configuration, is immediately at a loss in terms of competing in the strategic world. Because the moment you try to do that, the moment you try to make your brain operate in an active way in order to be able to create some kind of mental strategy, you're using or trying to use energy that you don't have. It's just not natural.

Migraines Suffered Most by Right-Brain or Right-Mind

Of course, what happens to these beings is that, I think if you look, I think you'll see that most of the beings who suffer, for example, from migraines are going to be beings that are either Right-brained, and more often Right-brained than anything else, Right-brained or Right-minded. And in this combination, those who have been deeply conditioned to be strategic, the net result of that is going to be a great deal of difficulty with headaches, all this kind of stuff where the brain is just not built for that. It isn't. It's just not built for that.

Written comment: My migraines stopped with PHS.

Ra: Yes, it's interesting. I know this from quite a few people. Again it's specific to those who are Right-brained. It's what I've noticed more than anything else, though I know some who are Right-minded with a Left-brain. And they tend to have just headaches, just trying to remember things, trying to form that strategic way of dealing with things that leads to a lot of mental strain.

Right Mind/Right Brain 1: PRL/DRL and PRR/DRL

But people who suffer from migraines, migraines are a horrible thing. There is enormous suffering in that. And so much of that is just simply connected with a Right-brain that is not designed to do that. That's why it's so important to understand the phenomena of what Strategy and Authority really brings as a tool for those beings who are Right. It's an incredible thing, because it takes all the pressure off of their brain system. It takes all the pressure off, so that they no longer have to put themselves in that situation where they are trying to get their Right-ness to function in a Left way. The moment they surrender to the Right-ness is the moment that all of that potential is what begins to enrich their life.

Now, the key for these beings is that in order for them to be okay in their Right-ness it's not just a matter of your Strategy and Authority and your PHS. But in understanding the nature of what it is, this Independent Variable, to recognize this is your storyline. And only when you're surrendered to that, because after all, this is the life, so only when you're really surrendered to this life, only when you're surrendered to being correct in this—and again, based on the nine-centered development, this is something that comes with your Saturn return. That is, if you've got a child who's being raised correctly according to their nature, their environment isn't something that is significant until they get to their Saturn. What is significant up until then is simply living according to their Strategy and Authority and eating correctly according to their PHS.

But of course, in order to reduce the pressure on the Right-ness, the dietary regimen is something that is very, very important. But the key is to be correct in the life itself. So, the importance of the cave, how important this cave really is, and that cave leads to what is the perception that has a focus on possibilities. And of course, basically what that leads to an integration with others.

Again, when you're looking at the Nodes, you're not looking at the "I." This is the other thing to grasp about the difference between the Dependent Variable and the Independent Variable. The Dependent Variable is all about the "I," it's all about me, me, me, me, my brain, and my mind. This is what it's about. But, this down here is all about you, you, you, you, you. It's all about the other.

Everything about being Right is about grasping that more than anything else. It is your associations that are the most aligning, my word for healing, the most aligning things that take place for you. Because when you are active in your cave, being able to see all those possibilities, it's there in that environment that there are those who will come to you. And again, we're dealing with a Projector, those that will invite you, those who will be correct to enter into that cave. And in entering into that cave, and being able to see the possibilities that they will be able to tap into, the deep resources that are there in the Right-ness.

Everything about being Right-minded, and in this case both Right-minded and Right-brain, is understanding that it is the other that draws from your well. It's not you. It's not about you digging in there, because there is nothing to find. One of the things about Right-ness, one of the things about understanding where we're going in the evolutionary track is that we're going towards a creature that doesn't care about the "I." It doesn't care about the "I" at all.

As a matter of fact, when you get to the Rave you get to something that surrenders to a higher form of organizing principle that gives up of itself, that gives up any potential of "I-ness" in order to be part of something that is larger. In fact, it becomes simply a component of a conscious Penta.

Being Rewarded for Being Used Well

Of course, that is not what we are, but something to grasp about the Right-ness is that your Right-ness is not something that you can take advantage of. It's something that somebody else can take advantage of. It's about being used well. And it's about being rewarded for being used. And when I say "used," I really truly do not mean this in a negative sense.

The fact is that the Right being has an extraordinary potential, and a potential that is deeply, deeply, deeply intellectual. There is all of this incredible resource that is available there in Right-ness. It's what it's designed to be able to do. It's designed to take in and take in and take in and then wait for the opportunity for that to be tapped into by the other.

Example Chart 12

Now again, you can see the continuity in this, and this is the third Projector in a row, and the third Projector in a row with a completely open mental system. It is one of the patterns that you get to see in Right-ness, which is very interesting. I don't yet know what the ultimate statistics are, but from what I gather, this is rather normal. Again, it says something about genetic continuity. One of my favorite things in Human Design is that as you go deeper and deeper into analysis, as I'm doing for example in my holistic analysis work, you get to see the genetic continuity at every single level. It all just fits.

Again, you're dealing with the same phenomena. You're dealing with the same story.

The only difference is that it's changed in the sense of the markets. Again, we have a personal view. But it's about being able to establish the activity in the correct environment. Think about this. We don't know. If you're going to have Right-ness brain/mind and you're going to have any value of Left-ness in your Independent Variable, then the most important thing for you is to be doing what is correct. It's the doing of what is correct that opens up all the possibilities and all of the potential to be able to take in the resources, take in the information that you are designed to take in.

Now, aside from the things that you can do to increase the viability of your process, feeding yourself correctly and so forth and so on, it is the actual decisions that are made in relationship to what is correct for you to do. Again, this goes back to the difference between Right-ness and Left-ness when it comes to the Dependent Variable. The Dependent Variable when it's Left, everything is about strategically trying to get yourself into the kind of occupation, career, blah, blah, blah, and all those kinds of things. It is constantly a calculation. That's basically what it is. It is constantly a calculation.

Right-ness has no way of calculating that. The Left is very concerned at the mental level about what it does rather than being right and recognizing that the doing gets done. And of course "the doing gets done" is really an amazing thing. This is one of my favorite sayings from the ancients. The Druids had this extraordinary expression: Do without doing and everything gets done. This is really the magic of what Strategy and Authority can do for Right-ness.

When I was given the knowledge, it's clear to me now after all of these years, it wasn't given to me for the Left. It is obviously a valuable tool for anyone. But I understand it in the sense of where we're moving and I understand it in the evolutionary sense. That Strategy and Authority is here to protect Right-ness. It's here to protect it. Because the most important thing for a Right being is that they're not concerned about tomorrow, what they have to do, what they need to do, what they should be doing, the kinds of decisions that are always a matter of some kind of strategic analysis.

When you think about any decision that the brain/mind system is going to work with, it is always some kind of strategic calculation. You know, should I do this? And if I'm going to do that, what does it mean? And where is it going to lead? All of that is a strategic analysis; all of it. The way in which all of these Right beings have been raised has been with this strategic approach to the way in which things are supposed to be. And of course, that leads to them making mental decisions, mental decisions that are based on a Left-ness that is not theirs, on a strategic potential that is not going to work for them. And of course, they end up with horrendous problems in their life.

The magical thing about Strategy and Authority as a tool for Right-ness is that it liberates them completely. And the thing that it liberates them from is having to strategically try to figure out what the hell to do. You don't have to do that. You can just allow your Strategy and your inner Authority to define whatever your life story is going to be. The moment you do that, the moment that you're honoring that Strategy and Authority, you take all the burden off of the mental system to be strategic.

Now obviously, it takes awareness. One of the most magnificent things about this kind of level of knowledge is that every time you take in the information at this level, you are transforming. That's what it does. This is the magical thing about truth. The magical thing about a logical system that resonates in the life is that as you take this in, it becomes more and more a natural thing, a natural thing to let go of having to be mentally strategic. It is not necessary.

And having to let go of your mind defining who you should be with, what you should be doing, and when you should be doing it, because the moment you're in that is the moment you're stuck in the whole strategic thing. It's the moment that you're putting pressure on a brain system that is not built for that. It's the moment you're putting pressure on a mental system is not capable, a mind system that is not capable of conceptualizing that way. It all becomes artifice.

When you think about the nature of conceptualizing on this planet, and I've mentioned this many times, there is so little originality because half of humanity is Right-minded. And so what are they going to do? They're going to copy strategic formulas. They can have no original formula. It can only be a something that they're borrowing in the conditioned sense. It doesn't lead to anything.

LECTURE FOUR

All it does do is dumb down what is the incredible richness that is there in them. More than that, those beings who are Right in this way, without awareness they are so suspicious of their Right-ness because they think they have to be strategic. And when their Right-ness suddenly emerges, when something pops out of that well, they honestly don't know what to do with it.

Half the people on this planet who are channels, these people who claim they're channels, they're channeling this and they're channeling that. These are people who are Right-brained and Right-minded who are stuck in a deeply, deeply conditioned strategic life. And what they've learned to do is pretend that things move through them from someplace else. "I'm channeling Zebon, I'm channeling the Pleiades. I'm channeling my grandmother," whatever it is. They're not channeling anything.

What's coming out is their Right-ness. And they have no way of recognizing that. They have no way of recognizing that because from the moment they came into the world they have been conditioned to be Left, and this is all they can do.

So, the first thing to really grasp is the beauty of what it is to find your place in this life. You find it through the tool. You find it through, in this case, the emotional clarity. It's emotional clarity that ultimately is going to bring to you the judgmentation that is going to place you in the right function in the right place. And you don't have to worry about thinking about that, because that's not the point.

The other thing is that it's all about being active without the activity having anything to do with the potential. Now, it can, but it doesn't have to. In other words, if it's your Strategy and Authority that leads you into doing something that is repetitive, mundane, whatever the case may be, is really not the point. Actually, you're a classic example of this. It is your serendipity that you do something that is actually very mechanical. You know that. It's mechanical, it's repetitive. It is just simply that. For those of you who don't know, she basically transcribes everything that I teach. And doing the transcription work is just an activity. That activity is a very Left activity; it's a busy thing, doing that. And yet, what's actually taking place is that there is this enormous process of taking in and digesting.

It's not about that you consciously have to think about what you're taking in as you're doing the mechanical of the transcribing. That is just a mechanism. It's just a way to keep you active, a way in which you can be looked after at a material level and so forth and so on. After all, everybody needs to have a way in which they survive on the material plane. And surviving on the material plane is what Strategy and Authority does. It gives you that extraordinary potential to be able to find the activity that is correct for you without that being a strategic, mental job. And then you can allow your Right-ness to simply take in.

In the process in this life, where we're moving towards is that each being who operates correctly, Right beings, Right-minds, Right-brains, anybody who's Right-minded, if you operate correctly in the physical life, the physical life brings you into contact with the correct other. That correct other is going to be there to tap into you. That's what they're going to be there for, to tap in.

Example Chart 13

Now here we have an interesting one. You can see we have the same configuration, but this is the first example that is not a Projector and doesn't have an open mental system. You do have a mental system that is cut off.

We're dealing with an emotional Manifesting Generator, so we're dealing with a very powerful energy-being in this case. It all comes down to the same thing, though. After all, this is where the story is [the Nodes]. If you're going to be able to function correctly on this plane, the first thing you have to be able to do is settle into what is the correct life.

It's all form principle. When the form principle is correct then everything is possible. The moment the form principle is correct, it is going to align you into what is correct for you in terms of your environment. Even if you don't know anything about it—it's interesting—even if you don't know anything about it. It is an incredible thing, because over seven years as you operate just through Strategy and Authority, ultimately, you get to align yourself to what is correct. You just do.

So, something really important to grasp is that it's the doing that saves this Right being. And it's the doing that separates them from the demands of being strategic at the mental level. Those beings who are strategic at the mental level, it is really a problem. The moment you try with Right-ness to be strategic, you end up with madness, because you do. You end up with folly; you end up with all of those things that just simply do not work.

LECTURE FOUR

It's so interesting to recognize something about the nature of the Right-brain. The Right-brain is deeply, deeply dependent on correct PHS; deeply dependent. All these beings who have come in on this plane at this time who are Right-brained and Right-minded but particularly Right-brained, because they have been overwhelmingly conditioned to being strategic, their brains systems are really clogged up; they're really unhealthy. They have been taxed to a point in which they are not functioning well at all.

One of the priorities for Right-ness, one of the priorities for any of you carrying these kinds of configurations, is how important it is that your dietary regimen is something that really is going to finally bring the correctness to the way in which your brain will work and will take the pressure off of it. If you're not following the dietary regimen, you're still going to have all the old conditioning on a brain system that was constantly being compelled to be active. And this creates all kinds of dilemmas and stops the process of being able to properly take in the potential that is there in any Right-brained being, this huge storage potential that is part of what the passive brain is all about.

The other thing is that until the brain takes on its pure passive nature, it's only then that the whole Personality potential is possible. It's only then that the form begins to relax. It's always interesting when you look at an emotional being, any emotional being, and you look at them from their brain, just from the brain, if the brain isn't operating correctly, the emotional system is going to be chaotic. It's just going to be chaotic. It's one of the things I love about work that Martin Grassinger does in interrelating the various biological aspects to really see the relationship.

Obviously, when we're talking about the brain, the brain is connected to everything. Without the proper PHS—which means being able, in this case caveman diet, to establish the correct frequency of the brain, that's also going to change the frequency of the emotional system. It just is. And obviously it's going to change transitoriness, the potential of crisis, and all these other things. It is such an extraordinary

Obviously, when we're talking about the brain, the brain is connected to everything. Without the proper PHS—which means being able, in this case caveman diet, to establish the correct frequency of the brain, that's also going to change the frequency of the emotional system. It just is. And obviously it's going to change transitoriness, the potential of crisis, and all these other things. It is such an extraordinary thing to grasp that if you're not correct and you're Right, the dilemmas that arise in your life create more demands for you to be strategic. It becomes a Catch-22 and you can't get out, you just can't get out. It's why Strategy and Authority is so important. It is why it is the key to begin with because it releases one from that pressure.

PRR/DRL: Sees What Others Don't See

Here we have a change. The change it is on the Personality side in terms of the way in which the Personality perspective is going to operate. Obviously, we've got a peripheral vision here. The interesting thing about peripheral vision, peripheral vision is really fascinating because these are the beings who see what others don't see. This is what being peripheral is all about.

The moment you have somebody who is focused here [left pointing arrow]—and there are a lot of beings on this side of the road, a lot of beings who are focused in their vision—they're really blind. That doesn't mean that's bad; again, this is not about good or bad. It's different. It's very different. If you've got a focused perspective, that's what you're here for and it'll be there in the genetic continuity as it relates to your design. In other words, you're focused for a reason. And you're only supposed to be looking at certain things for a reason and not seeing all that other stuff.

But here, this is a being who's here to see what others don't see [green variable, peripheral perspective]. Again, you can see here in that focus it's the same thing [orange variable, focused perspective]. This is focused. They're looking specifically at certain things, not everything. And the beauty of being Right [Brain-Mind circled in orange variable] and being focused is that that one thing you look at is something you see in incredible depth. It's one of the beauties of this.

Here what you have is that being able to see what the other cannot see [green variable, peripheral perspective]. And of course, that is something that is tied into being tapped into as resource because that thing you see that nobody else can see is not something you can offer, but is something that has to be taken from you, in a sense, asked from you, invited, whatever the configuration happens to be in the being's design.

Example Chart 14

In this case dealing with a Generator, it is something to be asked. The thing to recognize is that here you have this one element that is Left. The element that is Left is about the nature of the way in which one operates within the environment, that the environment is where you need to be active. The active environment is a key. And yet, you can only be active in the environment when you enter into that according to what your nature is.

Again, everything having to do with the Right being is something that is so extraordinary, because the Right being has this potential to go deeper and deeper and deeper and deeper and deeper and deeper and yet they don't know what to do.

This is their tragedy

when you see them as not-self. They have no idea what to do, because they're always trying strategically to figure out "what should I do" instead of allowing their Strategy and Authority to determine what their life is all about.

You can see that this is a movement away from hardscape to landscape. And here is a triple-split definition, so there is this movement in the world, there is this activity in the world and that activity feeds all of this Right-ness. And yet, all of that Right-ness, with all of the advantages it could bring to others is something that waits for others to tap into it. What that "doing" is, what that activity is leads to seeing what others don't see.

Again, this view is about seeing the basics. It's about seeing what frightens people; it's about seeing all the things that impact the survival of human beings. After all, it is a survival view. It's about seeing how, and seeing in great depth, what others can't see about how they can or cannot survive. And yet, all of this becomes a tool for the other when the being is correct and the other is coming to them and is drawing from that well. In this case, it is clear that as a teacher and as a very fine teacher, there are all these beings are tapping into that resource. They're simply just tapping into it.

The thing that makes the Right so special is that the moment their Strategy and Authority is allowed to define their purpose, because that's what it does, that's the most interesting thing to think about. Your Strategy and Authority defines what to do in this life, and defines who you do it with. And that's everything. That is the Independent Variable. It establishes all of the potential inherent in that particular life. And then everything else is possible.

When you put together following your Strategy and Authority with the dietary regimen and the environment—and that it's your Strategy and Authority that is determining what you're doing and who you're doing it with—then all of the things that are there as a Right being immediately become available and you get the rewards for it. That's the real magic.

Some of the saddest people I know are Right beings who don't know that. You can see it; you can smell it. When you meet somebody who is like that, right away you can just smell it. You know right away that they're struggling so deeply to find appreciation in this life. It's not about worth or lack of worth in the ego sense, it's about appreciation. It's about being able to appreciate themselves. It's about being appreciated by others, because after all, if you come onto this plane and you're carrying a great deal of Right-ness you have so much to offer. And somewhere inside of you, you know that. You don't necessarily know how to put a finger on it, but you know it's there.

You know those extraordinary moments when your Right-ness is tapped into and that stuff comes out and suddenly you get that appreciation from the other. It is very comical because I just got some e-mails from Lynda that absolutely, perfectly expressed that. The moment that Right-ness is being tapped into, it is appreciated, because this is a deeply rich resource. It's something for all of you to grasp in your Right-ness. You are a resource.

If you let go of trying to define what you are and allow your Strategy and Authority to simply give you a life, because that's what it does, it just gives you a life. It gives you the thing to do, it gives you the beings to do it with; just trust it to do that and then the resource will be tapped into.

The most important thing is that you don't give up on your depth. To be strategic when you're Right is to kill your depth. You're not here to focus. You're not. Any attempt to mentally focus becomes really disturbing because it takes away from what you're here for, which is to be this incredible, absorbing consciousness. And an absorbing consciousness that is more than just that. You tap into a Right being, and dependent on their design and all of the various things that are there, they're going to give you something very special out of that. This is what they're all about.

Not only that, but because it is such a deep resource, they fundamentally have so many different things they can offer in any given situation in relationship to the other. The Right being is meant for the other. Here's a classic configuration of the 40/37 in this case [see chart on the next page]. Here is a conscious community being, somebody who is here to be a part of that community, somebody that is here to provide for the intelligence of that community, all of that.

LECTURE FOUR

Right Mind/Right Brain 1: PRL/DRL and PRR/DRL

That is something that just is going to arise naturally when you're doing the right thing, you're in the right place and you're just taking in, because to be Right is, in that sense, never to stop being the student. You're always learning. You're always taking things in. That's why I talk about Right-ness in the sense of being present, how important it is when you're Right to be present. Those moments when you're present are those moments when you are taking in at an extraordinary level. And there is simply a time when all of that just simply comes flowing back out. It's this flowing back out of that that seems, exponentially, so much deeper than what you took in.

This is the magic of Right-ness. What you appear to be taking in—it is like now. All of you are Right. Those of you who are Right-minded—all of you are—and those of you, particularly, who are Right-minded and Right-brain, you're taking in what I'm delivering. And yet, that's not what you're actually taking in. You're taking in much more than that. That's the magic of being Right. You're taking in much more. You're taking in what I'm not saying. You're taking in the associated things that I'm not saying. You're taking in all of the various things that suddenly you're clicking to as you hear what I describe, the various levels of that. You're taking in enormous amounts of information.

So what happens to beings who are Right is that they appear to be taking in only this certain limit of things when, in fact, it grows exponentially in their system so that when you go back and you tap into them, all of that has grown. Not only has it grown, but it takes a shape that is associated to whatever is going to demand it.

So, for example, in the case of Lynda, the way it's going to come out is through the way in which she operates as a teacher. And yet, in other situations that don't have anything to do with her professional work, they will come out in a different way. They just do. They will come out to serve whatever the moment is.

The Magic of Strategy and Authority

This is the beauty of Right-ness. All of it begins with the essential magic in Human Design. This Strategy and Authority is an absolutely, incredible thing. It really is. I had an interesting e-mail from an old friend of mine in Design, very concerned. They had listened to my Radical Transformation lecture, and very concerned about: is it just enough to work with Strategy and Authority? I reminded them that if it weren't for Strategy and Authority, there would be no alignment at all. It is the beginning, it is the middle, and it is the end. Without it, there is nothing.

For those beings who are Right, for all of you, it's your Strategy and Authority that saves you. It saves you from ever having to be strategic. It saves you from ever having to descend into that conditioning ever again, because you don't have to. You can trust in what is there. You can trust in that Strategy and Authority as a tool. As a tool that frees you mentally, that allows you to finally breathe in this life in the way in which you were intended to, to take in the richness of this life in your unique way without there being this pressure that somehow you have to catalogue all of that in order to deliver it. You don't.

The most important thing is to simply to be there, to be present, to be free of the fear, to just trust in what is a basic mechanic. Obviously, it's very important. Anyone who wants to take this process as deeply as possible, one has to deal with the completion of form work, the dietary regimen, the recognition and acceptance of and the correctness of one's environment. When you bring these three form aspects together with the Strategy and Authority, the Right being is liberated. And it's liberated to live out its pure creativity.

You are all deeply, deeply, deeply creative beings. This is what you're here for. Your creativity is something that can only be brought out in relationship with the other. It means you have to be correct, you have to be in the right place, you have to be with the right beings and you get there through Strategy and Authority. Then the rest looks after itself.

Ok, I hope you enjoyed that. To all of you, you take care. Next week we'll close this off and get down to the Right of Right of Right of Right. All right, all of you, bye for now.

Lecture Five

Hello and welcome to all of you. It is my last class of this academic year. It's my last class of this particular semester. I get on an airplane tomorrow. I'm off on another adventure. So, it's appropriate, I suppose, that we end with the beginning, in a way. We end with the beginning of the future of where we're all going in terms of the evolutionary pattern.

What we have been looking at throughout this half of this semester in dealing with From the Right is looking at the phenomena of the Right-mind. What we saw at the beginning is that when we opened up with the original quadrant, we were looking at the Right-mind in association with the Left-brain.

The Dependent and Independent Variables

When we entered into this second quadrant, we entered into this area in which we have the relationship between the Right-brain and the Right-mind. Obviously, the Right-brain/Right-mind is what is called the Dependent Variable, as the Dependent Variable it is directly related to the Sun/Earth's Personality and the Design Sun/Earth's. One of the things to keep in mind about these upper arrows is that they are deeply dependent on the life itself. The life that emerges out of what is the Independent Variable or the Nodal alignment, the way in which the Nodes establish the trajectory, the movement that we are going to have in this life.

But the Nodes do more than that. The Nodes represent from the Design side our environment, and that environment leads to, on the Personality side, what is our specific perspective. That combination of environment and perspective is really what establishes what is called the storyline. That is, it establishes the life that is going to be there.

DRR	PASSIVE → STRATEGIC OBSERVED ← FOCUSED	PASSIVE → STRATEGIC OBSERVED ← PERIPHERAL	PASSIVE → RECEPTIVE OBSERVED ← FOCUSED	PASSIVE → RECEPTIVE OBSERVED ← PERIPHERAL

In our work today we're going to be looking at the final pairing here. Now, there is nobody in this particular group [PRL/DRR] who actually has this Variable. As a matter of fact, it's interesting for me because it's the Variable of my eldest son. And interestingly enough, my Variable is up here [green star] and they're exact opposites of each other. So it's always one of those curiosities.

I think one of the things you'll find very interesting is that if you take a look at the way in which your Variable operates and then take a look at those people in your life, if you have data, parents, siblings, children, and to map out the Variables in those connections. It is something that is really very fascinating.

One of the earliest things that I did was to map out the Variables in my bloodline in my family. You get to see some extraordinary things, things that you don't necessarily see in other ways. It is something that is actually an interesting exercise, if I can put it that way.

PRL/DRR: A Focus that has Infinite Layers

What we have here is this lower quadrant, this lower coupling at the bottom of this quadrant. Let's begin with this area over here. And as I said, I don't have any charts for it so I will just talk about it.

The first thing is we have a theme that is deeply, deeply Right. And we have a theme that's deeply Right but there is a real difference in it. That difference is this remnant here that is carrying the Left. It is a remnant of—after all, we are in the direct evolutionary movement here and these two elements are very much the forefront, along with this movement that is moving us into the future and moving us towards Right-ness.

The thing that is so fascinating about it is that aside from the things that we've all discussed in a relationship to the way in which the Right operates, what is interesting here is the focus that is in the perspective. Now, one of the things that is really essential to grasp about the Right, and I've been trying to stress that as we've been moving through and we've been talking about this, is to really understand that the Right cannot be responsible for its strategy. In other words, it is not something that the Right is here to develop. They're not here to develop a strategic way of dealing with the world. This is not what they're about.

The Right is Dependent on the Quality of its Relationships

It means that, in that context, the Strategy and Authority derived from Human Design is a way of seeing how one can operate when one is divorced from the control of the mental system; Strategy and Authority is an enormous boon for Right-ness. Basically what it is doing is liberating the creativity that is inherent in what it is to be Right. There is extraordinary creativity in the potential of Right-ness.

After all, the whole thing about being Right is this depth of absorption that is taking place, the amount of detail that is being taken in experientially. And at the same time, because everything having to do with Right has to do with its social dynamic, one of the most important things to grasp about Right-ness is that the Right is so dependent on the quality and the kinds of relationships that it has.

It is only out of those specific relationships that there's ever going to be this possibility of having the creative potential that's inherent in them pulled out of them, because it isn't something that's natural. There is no strategic way in which they can recognize the potential that is inherent in the way they take in everything, and the way in which that has to come out is in its relationship to the other.

Correct Environment Establishes the Foundation for a Differentiated Life

Now, one of the most fascinating things about the way in which the Independent Variable operates is that because this is directly related to the Nodes, and the Nodes are directly related not just simply to our life and its story, but they're related to the way in which we are going to connect to the other. Everything about being environmentally correct is something that is enormously important; being environmentally correct is the thing that establishes the foundation upon which you can live your differentiated life.

One of the things that I have been stressing more and more and more recently is the necessity for those who are deeply involved in the Human Design process to really align themselves to what is environmentally correct for them. In other words, the environment itself becomes the foundation of establishing the correctness of their life.

Environment is Not Important until Age 30

Remember the way in which the nine-centered life is intended to operate. You go from 0 to 30 and everything is simply about PHS and your Strategy and Authority. It isn't about anything else. It's about learning how to operate according to your Type and it's about nourishing yourself in a way that's correct. Now obviously, there is a tremendous responsibility given that it starts at 0, the responsibility of parenting.

It's why the transformation into the future is one that's going to be dependent on the awareness of parents in order to be able to raise their children according to what is correct for them, to raise them according to their Type, to raise them according to their authority, to raise them according to what their dietary regimen is supposed to be.

It's only when you get to this point of 30—after all, this is approximately what is the Saturn return—it's only when you get to this place that you're intended to literally cut the umbilical cord and move out into your own life. One of the things to grasp about children is that environment is not something that is important in the development of a child. If your child happens have valleys and you're living on top of a mountain, it isn't doing them any harm. And when I say that, I'm not suggesting that it's not doing them any good either. It just doesn't matter. It isn't going to matter until that child gets to their Saturn, and the moment they get to their Saturn, that's when they have to establish what is correct for them in terms of placing themselves into the correct frequency for their life.

This is environment. And once you step into that environment, you're basically looking at a 20-year process that is going to take you to the Kiron which is approximately at age 50 or 51. In other words, this 20 years is what it's all about. This is how you establish the foundation for your life. Remember, I'm saying foundation because the flowering is over here [Kiron]. You establish the foundation for that life. You do so by being environmentally correct and being environmentally correct then establishes the correct perspective.

Now, that is an ongoing process over what is intended to be a 20-year cycle. Now of course, one of the dilemmas we face is that each and every one of us began this life being deeply conditioned. We did not have the privilege of this first cycle. And most of us have been playing catch-up ever since. One of these things about playing catch-up is that there really aren't any rules. All you can do is to immerse yourself as deeply as you can.

There are certain things that you cannot avoid. You cannot avoid the demands of seven-year cycles. It takes seven years to decondition. And once that deconditioning takes place, a whole process begins anew. That is, you go through that first seven years of establishing who you are. It's a whole new life that you're creating. For somebody like me who is the oldest student of Human Design, in the sense of longevity of involvement, I'm in my 23rd year. Technically speaking, I'm still over here [blue star]. Technically, if you look at the way in which the whole process evolves in terms of the true nine-centered being that is raised correctly.

Strategy and Authority Leads to the Correct PHS and Environment

So my emphasis is not just simply on the catalyst of Strategy and Authority and dietary regimen, because if you do that for your first seven years in Design, what it's really going to do is speed up that process for you. In other words, it is going to give you that possibility of at least beginning to establish what the necessary perspective for the transformation of awareness is, because ultimately that's what it's about. So, this establishment of that correct environment and that establishment of the dietary regimen are things that can only be a result of the following a Strategy and Authority, and a Strategy and Authority that has led you into the educational phenomenon that gives you the information you need.

It's one of those things about the moment you get Strategy and Authority, you can begin this process of seeing clearly what aspects are things you can embrace. If you're a Generator and somebody says to you, "Are you ready for your dietary regimen?" and you go, "uh-uh," (no) well, you're not. I know a lot of Generators where this has happened. And a couple of years later it becomes an "uh-huh" (yes).

Again, everything about the development of those of us who have all been conditioned is it has to do with your Strategy and Authority. This is the only thing you're going to be able to trust to align you to what the possibilities are for you. And the most profound possibility in terms of Right-ness is the establishment of your environment. Without that, there is no way to really transform the consciousness itself.

Now, one of the interesting things about this particular configuration [see the next page, circled in red,] as I said, is this single focus. Now think about it. This is about perception. It is the view and it is the way in which the view is going to operate. So, here is somebody who is going to be able to focus, but focus in a very unusual way. It's not the kind of focus that you would find on this side [left pointing red arrow] of the Variable grid, not at all. What it is is a focus that has endless, almost infinite layers to it, a focus that has infinite layers to it.

These are very, very different beings. This is not the huge peripheral focus that we're going to see over here [circled in green]. It's not. It is about having a focus, having something that you are focused on, and what happens through that focus is that you get layers and layers and layers and layers and layers and layers of information rooted in that focus.

As I said, I have the exact opposite of this. And what I mean by that is that where these arrows are Right, I have Left and where this is Left I have Right. The thing that is unusual about my particular Variable is, despite the fact that I am deeply, deeply strategic, I see peripherally. And seeing peripherally means that, relative to the strategic world, I see things that others don't see. And I see things that others don't see in the full spectrum of things.

This is a being over here [above, circled in red] who sees what others don't see in the focus. In other words, this is not about a peripheral vision where there are so many things that can be taken in. This is deeply focused vision that opens up the possibility of seeing in that focus what nobody else sees. Because what's possible are the layers and layers and layers and layers that are part of what is the Right process.

So, it makes these beings very, very different. But how do you get there? It's like dealing with somebody who has a 2nd line in their profile. If you have somebody with a 2nd line in their profile, you know that they're here for the call. Everything about their life is about being here for the call. And they have all kinds of barriers; they have all kinds of things that are structured so that there's only certain things that are really going to make a difference for them, only certain things that are going to transform their life. But how do you get there?

You don't get there with some kind of mental decision making. You don't. It's not possible. The great dilemma for anyone who carries a 2 in their profile is that they always, always—and I'm talking about the not-self—they always don't get it. They don't get what the real call is.

The same thing is here. What's the real focus? That real focus is not something that can come out of what is a Right-mind/Right-brain. It doesn't work that way. The Right-mind/Right-brain is just this vast pool of stuff that it is taking in. And stuff that it's taking in that's supposed to be related to its very, very unusual and very specific, focused view. But if you're not correct, if you don't enter into things correctly—and after all, it's the basis of Human Design—if you don't enter into things correctly, you're never going to be environmentally in the place that is going to give you the focus. And that focus is their wonder.

This is the thing that makes this Variable so extraordinary. And the dilemma for them is that when they're not correct, they don't focus. They're constantly looking around, trying to, in a sense, be locked into what is the rest of their Right-ness because they feel like, as not-self, that they're really out of balance. And yet, everything is about finding this focus and the only way you find that focus is when you're correct. There isn't any other way. And it comes from the Strategy and Authority.

The moment you get to Right-ness, any Right-ness, anything that has to do with the Right Personality mind and builds from then on, whatever the equation is in terms of the level of Right-ness that's here on this side [right] of the graphing, is to recognize that the only way you're going to be able to fulfill the potential of your Right-ness is if you have a way to be able to make the decisions that you need to make to align yourself to what works for you.

And of course, you can't do that from this kind of mental plane. You can't. The dilemma on this side [left] of the graphing is that all of those strategic Personality minds think they can. Strategy and Authority, it's a kind of joke. Strategy and Authority can be more easily embraced by the Right than it can be embraced by the Left. Because the Left has this vanity that it assumes that mentally, it strategically can figure things out. After all, this is an inheritance from the seven-centered strategic mind that thought it could control the whole world, and did.

But everything about Right-ness is that Strategy and Authority is the only thing that liberates the creativity because it aligns things. It gives you the tool that you need, the tool that you can't get in terms of what Right is leaning towards. Remember, everything about Right-ness is pointing towards the Rave, the emergence of the Rave. And the Rave is not human in any sense that we can relate to. It will have no sense of identity; it will be handicapped in the way in which it is physically structured. It will not be embraced by the world around it. It will really be very different because it is designed to give of itself to something that is larger. It is a life that is no longer an independent life, but a life that is going to surrender to a larger conscious force that's simply going to take advantage of it without it caring. But that's not who we are.

This Quadrant can become Deeply Dependent

At yet at the same time, you have to see that you need, as Right beings, particularly when you get into deeper and deeper levels of Right-ness, you need your substitute for the conscious Penta. You need that substitute that's going to provide you with the strategic tools, because otherwise you're going to have a hard time surviving. The thing about this quadrant here [lower right quadrant] is that it can end up being deeply, deeply dependent. Dependent on others, dependent on surrendering to other human beings guiding them, controlling them, telling them what to do, looking after them, caring for them, all of those kinds of things because of this sense of not being able to do that themselves or being deeply confused about how they do that themselves.

This is where Strategy and Authority is the savior of these beings, because it gives them that artificial substitute for where the evolutionary track is taking them. And here, the only way to find this focus—you can't find the focus here [circled]. This is only going to be the substance of the layers that are going to be there for the focus. And they are only going to be valuable when that focus is actually achieved. What is that thing you focus on?

These Beings See Things Others Don't See

And of course, these beings have great gifts. This is the kind of person, when they look at you, they see things that others don't see in you. It's just natural for them, if that is correct. In other words, if they are in the right place, whatever they look at, whatever they focus on, because that is their nature, they are going to have levels of information that far exceed what others have ever had before.

I read a fascinating article today in The International Herald Tribune. And I think you can pick it up, probably on the New York Times website. It was from the weekend or a couple of days ago and it was about an article on the warrior's brain, the studies that have been going on and focused on the American military in their expeperiences in Iraq. They gave some incredible examples of the soldiers who have a patrol in very dangerous places. One of the major weapons used against them were these explosive devices that the other side would hide. And they would hide them, getting more and more sophisticated.

There are certain soldiers that simply have a sense. And of course, they're trying to figure out how that all works. They simply have a sense. They're the kinds of beings who notice the slightest detail that is slightly off. They have shifts in their body temperature in moments of recognition of danger. There are all of these things.

And it's not all of them. There are certain ones who really have this almost spooky kind of sense of where things are going to be, what things are out of place. The kinds of things where they can look at a scene and see a rock on the ground and realize that it shouldn't be there. And there's no reason to think that. Do you know what I mean? There are all these incredible things.

These are Right beings. These are soldiers who are Right. And they have a Rightness that is going to be rooted in Solar Plexus tonal capacities, those capacities, particularly 5th and 6th Tones, where they're going to be able to pick up frequencies. They're going to be able to pick up things that other people don't pick up. And in being able to pick that up, they are literally able to recognize things that others just simply can't recognize.

Now, this is one of the things that is inherent in this kind of configuration. This focus that is here is an incredible gift. It's this gift of just being able to see one thing and see it in these deepening levels. And yet, what that one thing is, you can't just get there. You can't just decide. You can't do any of those things. All you can trust is a Strategy and Authority that is transcendent of that. There isn't anything else that you can trust. It's the only thing that you can trust.

It bypasses all of the turmoil of what it is to have been Right-minded, Right-brained and raised in a Left world, raised in a world with all of that Left propaganda, the way you were trained, the way you were educated, the way your parents conditioned you, all of those things were all strategic. And what that led to is this enormous pressure on the Right-mind to be Left, and it isn't. All of that pressure on being Left just simply handicaps the Personality. It just does.

It makes things so difficult, and not only that, but the Personality itself doesn't get to achieve what is its true potential, because it never gets the experience of having all of that depth, everything that it's capable of absorbing, having all of that finally come out. This is the beautiful thing for anyone who is Right, because as I said, this is creativity. And it's creativity that is beyond what we see in basic Design when you look at individuality and you look these things. This is a creativity that is transcendent of that.

Where the Right Being is and Who They're with is Fundamental Everything has a creative possibility to it. It all goes back to where are you and what are you doing and who are you doing it with. Because everything about this over here [circled, dependent variable]—yes, dietary regimen—but the reality is for Right being where are you, what you looking at, who is in your life, these are the fundamental things that are essentials for the Right. And they can't decide that. They're not equipped for that, not that anybody is, by the way. But even more so for the Right, because they've been so deeply propagandize to be Left, to be strategic; this is not what it's about.

So, the only thing they can do that transforms all of that is that they rigidly, rigidly, rigidly follow this mechanism, this Strategy and Authority mechanism that allows them to align to these things. And then when this being can be in that correct environment, regardless of when it takes place in their process, they can finally begin to do their work. They can finally begin to live out their purpose.

They can finally begin to live out the purpose of being able to explore at deeper and deeper levels whatever that focus happens to be. The correctness of that focus is determined by their Strategy and Authority. And that will bring the right forces into their life who will draw that out from them, because they will. If you're not in the right place, if you're not dealing with the right beings, then you're not going to have this creative potential drawn from you. You won't.

PRR/DRR: Have To Be Asked or Invited by the Correct People

Example Chart 15

Let's move along now over to the Right-ness. You can see, obviously, all the Right-ness that is here. Think about this. You look at anybody's design and you see a complexity of things that are there in their design. We're dealing with a four-motored emotional Generator [chart is on the next page] and a split-definition. We know all the things that come with that. We know the way in which these splits can be brought together, and it's very complex the way in which this can be brought together.

Right Mind – Right Brain 2: PRL/DRR & PRR/DRR

It begins with the 51st gate, the 6th gate, the 54th gate, the 58th gate. Did I get them all? I assume I got them all.

There are always different influences that are there in terms of the way in which this being, as not-self is going to be conditioned. Think about it this way. If you're not-self and you're a split-definition, you're going to be conditioned to be strategic about these things. Let me find initiation, let me find intimacy, let me find transformation, let me find judgment. Let me get all those things. And how do I get those things? And all of the strategic stuff that goes into trying to figure out how you do that.

For a being like this where there was all this possibility—it's one of the things I love about seeing people who are 46/29s. Whenever you see somebody's design and they have the 46/29, you know right away that these are beings who are here to be challenged in this life. After all, they can succeed where others fail or fail where others succeed. And here is somebody who is totally Right. So the deep, deep creativity of this being is the only thing that is going to bring it success. It's the only thing.

Everything about having to be Right is always about who is tapping into you. No matter what you do, it always ends up being the same thing. It is about: Are you in the right place, are you in the right place with the right beings? Because if you are, that is going to establish the correct perspective. It is going to establish the correct view. You're going to be able to fulfill the creative potential that is here through others.

The thing that happens to beings who are Right is that what really messes them up in this life is the other. Wow, it's the other. This is the thing that you have to really consider as a Right being. You all have to understand this. It doesn't matter whether somebody appears like they want you, need you. A classic example, Cathy is a gifted student of Human Design, and is a teacher. Not everybody has a right to learn from her just because she's there.

Because again, it always goes back to the same thing: Who is that other and are they correct? Because everything about being Right and everything about having the creativity brought out of you—take a classic example and this is something that really works in-aura. I'm talking about in-aura. I'm not talking about interactive over the web. It's a totally different frequency.

You have somebody who comes into your aura, Cathy, and that person comes into your aura and says, "Can you give me an answer to this question?" whatever the case may be. The moment that being is in your aura, if they are not the correct being, if they're not there in a way that is correct, in other words, have they asked you, have you waited, all that kind of stuff. If it's not correct, what's going to be drawn from you is not going to be the be-all and the end-all for them.

Think about the creative potential of any being who's Right. It means, quite literally, that what you've carried within you is an essential truth for anyone, any correct one. But it has to be that correct one. So, that being steps into your aura, wants to draw something from your well, but if it's not correct in the way that they're there, oh, they'll get something. But after all, there is so much that's there. And what they're going to get is not going to be what they really need. It isn't going to be what could be absolutely life-changing for them. It won't.

Yet, the moment that it's correct, that's the moment when they tap into the well they get the creative richness that is there, because the thing about the Right being is that they carry all of these layers of information waiting for the suitable being to let it come out and flow into them. It's what Right-ness is about. It always goes back to the same thing. It goes back to where are you. It goes back to who is in your life. And it goes back to Strategy and Authority.

The Emotional Generator

The Strategy and Authority of this, this is very, very strict. I mean, it's really, really strict. I was mentioning to my Holistic Analysis class the other night when I was closing up that first semester that I'd given somebody a holistic reading the other day. It was somebody who is an emotional Generator. It was so interesting to touch something so deep in that being, what it really means to be an emotional Generator, how precious the emotional Generator is.

If you sort of reverse engineer it, you look at it and see it in another way. I look at the emotional Generator and I see that the hardest person to be saved by is an emotional Generator, the hardest person to have as a friend, have as a lover, have as an ally, have as anything is an emotional Generator, because no emotional Generator is here for anyone in the moment. They're just not. They're not here for anyone in the moment. It's not possible to be there for anyone in the moment.

Not only is it a matter that there is no truth in the now, it is the emotional frequency that rules. The only way that that emotional frequency is liberated is if it has absolute control over when it can be accessed. It was so interesting with this person to go through that. When somebody sits in my aura, it's quite a trip when I do an analysis for them. I've got all this shock and the way my whole design operates inside of somebody's aura. I could watch; I've got three open motors and I was sitting with a powerful, motored being. I don't have a Sacral. I don't have a Solar Plexus Center. And taking in their frequency as I was doing that, I could feel the shattering going on in that process, because this was somebody who was always available, always available.

The whole thing about Right beings is that, even regardless of whether they know anything about Right-ness, they know that they're here to give. They know that. They know that they're here to be used correctly, if you know what I mean, to be used well: may you be used well. They know all of that. But they don't have the discipline that they need.

In the end, the Strategy and Authority of an emotional Generator is a discipline. And an all-Right emotional Generator, wow. If you don't have that Strategy and Authority as the ultimate mechanism in your process, nothing is going to work for you, because you're going to be used badly. And not only are you not going to be used well, but those who use you aren't even going to get what they want to get from you, because they won't, because they, in themselves, are distorting what they're receiving.

The emotional Generator is an extraordinary creature. This is something that is so special. It says, if you are accepted by them, that's really something. And they're in a different time frame. But we all know what happens to Generators when they come into this life. We know that they're deeply conditioned to be Manifestors. They're conditioned that time is something not to be wasted. This is one of the great sicknesses that is deep, deep, deep, deep in the emotional being's life, whether it's an emotional Generator, an emotional Manifestor, an emotional Projector, they all have the same thing: I don't want to miss anything. I'm going to miss it. I don't want to miss it. I want to get it. I want to get it now, all that stuff.

The great power of the emotional being is to live their frequency. It's a time frequency. Emotional beings live in their own time if they're correct. They never live in anybody else's time. They live in the beauty of what is their time frequency. And everybody else has to wait. There is nothing else. And you see that waiting is so special, because those who have to wait for the privilege of having access, because they wait, they show a level of respect that you cannot find anywhere else in any other kind of relationship. You don't.

Until you live that power, only then can you know who that being is. And it's Strategy and Authority because it as an all-Right being, there is no other way to assess it. The moment you're following that Strategy and Authority, what you get to do is get the right beings. These beings, when they tap into the well, they finally find their role model. They finally get what they need. They get the perfected in form. They get all that nurturing. They get everything that is there that you can offer. And they get it specifically for them. They get that whole creative expression.

It doesn't matter what anything else is. Obviously, if you are going to raise this to a level of perfection, all of the various ingredients have to be there. We know that. But in the end, for the being who is all-Right, the only thing that is going to protect them is that they have to be absolutely rigid in their Strategy and Authority above anything else, because it's the only thing that is going to protect them in terms of who, when, where, because nothing else will guide them. Nothing else gives that potential.

Example Chart 16

Here we move to the example of a Projector and we have all of this single definition openness. And you can see, I can see instantaneously when I look at a design like this, oh, wow, conditioning, conditioning, conditioning, conditioning. Here is this deeply talented knower, which means there is incredible creativity here. The potential of this talented knower, what this talented knower can recognize and can offer the other, can guide the other, all of that stuff.

But what is it dependent on? When you look at a single definition, the only thing you can see is open centers. Single definition brings such a deep center conditioning. "I don't know where I'm going. I don't know what love is.

I'm unworthy. I never know when enough is enough. I avoid confrontation and truth. I'm always a hurry, blah, blah, blah, under pressure. I think about things that don't matter."

All of this leads to strategic compensation. How do I compensate for any of these things? How do I compensate for not feeling worthy? It all becomes an attempt to be strategic. And it all falls apart. There is no ability, no capacity to be able to recognize who the right other is because it can't be here: I know, I know, I know. It goes back to what I said about the 2nd line beings. Here's a 2nd line being. You're waiting for the call. You're waiting for that invitation. You're not emotional. That invitation is something that can be dealt with in the now, but it has to be an invitation, it has to be correct.

And in that moment, in the now, it is this deep, deep intuitive judgmentation that is there in you that recognizes in the moment whether the being is correct or not for you, whether the place is correct or not for you, all the things that it brings. Because Right-ness has no natural way to be able to define what it's supposed to do, where it's supposed to be, who it's supposed to be with. There isn't. It's not what being Right is about. Being Right is about offering oneself.

But we know what that leads to if you're unaware. It leads to abuse. It leads to being a slave, or in this case, a super slave. It's not what it's about. And it leads to such deep disappointment. It leads to such deep bitterness in the language of a Projector. And it's all about the other.

Everything about being Right is about recognizing that you're always in partnership in one way or another with the other. You are. I stand on my Left-ness and I look at that and I go, "Ooh, I'm glad I'm not that," because to stand on the Left side of the grid is not to need that other in that way. It isn't. The other is not going to draw out my potential. I strategically do that.

But to be Right, the other means everything. For those 45% of the Right population who are going to be split-definitions, in a way they're advantaged. The split-definition all-Right is more advantaged than the single definition all-Right. Single definitions, by their nature, don't really need anybody. They don't. And yet, the gods play their games. The genetic continuity is such that there are no motors here. There is always going to be that looking to the other to be able to initialize the kinds of things that are going to make the energy process available.

And of course, this is where the great seduction is and where one gets totally lost in conditioning. It all goes back to the simple surface of Human Design. How amazing that is. I've been at this a really long time. It's been 23 years. I have taught this knowledge at every conceivable level and I'm at a depth in the knowledge today that is really remarkable. And yet, whenever I look, I'm always brought to that place of wonder that it's all just about Strategy and Authority. Everything else is about, yes, the wonder of analytical tools to see this, to see that, to see the other thing. It's extraordinary what we've learned about the dietary regimen, the environmental values, the way in which perception works, the way in which cognition can be expressed ultimately as outer authority, all the nuances that are there. Yes, it's all beautiful. It is the mechanics revealed.

But the mechanics revealed means nothing if you don't operate correctly. If you're not following your Strategy and Authority, it doesn't matter whether you're following your dietary regimen, because your Strategy and Authority is the only thing that's going to make the true difference in the life. When you're dealing with Right-ness, when you're dealing with all the depth of this creative potential that is in the Right being, they are helpless, truly helpless without it, because then they get totally lost in the strategic conditioning. They have no place else to turn. In ignorance it's not their fault. What to do. But then it's all loss, the beauty, the depth, the creativity.

It just goes back to basics, just the basics. It's like these various steps that are in transformation. A being who is all-Right has to be invited to their dietary regimen. They'll know. But they have to be invited, and they have to be invited by the right person, because if they're not invited by the correct person, they're not going to get into it. Even if they did, funny enough, it wouldn't work well for them. Because everything is about the other, and everything is about the correctness of the other and you can only get there through the Strategy and Authority. There isn't any other way.

It's the same thing with finding what is environmentally correct for you. Those shores that are there, but it has to be invited. It isn't something you can pursue. It isn't something that simply because you have the information, "Oh I know where I belong." Yeah, yeah, you don't.

You don't until it's invited. You don't until you get the call. And you get the call and you get invited by the being who is correct. And it doesn't happen unless you're following your Strategy and Authority. Then the depth is released, the magic comes out.

You can't just grab it. You can't be strategic. You can't go after it. You have to allow it to come to you. It comes to you according to what is correct for you. There is no other way. It's so beautiful to be a Right being who operates with a strategy, a strategy that they can trust, a strategy that they can rely on, a strategy that they don't have to be dependent on their mind to do it for them. They don't have put themselves in that vice that is going to distort their very nature. They don't.

Everything about being on the [right] side of the grid is to understand that Human Design is there to save you. It's to save you pain. It's to save the rest of us from being robbed of what we can receive from you. I stand up here with my Left-ness, but I know that the creative essence of the world is over here. And it hasn't been tapped into. It's like those scientists trying to figure out why there are these unusual soldiers that simply know when nobody else knows. And they know because they have the gift. They have the gift of Right-ness. They have this extraordinary creative potential in the way in which they take in the experience of existence. And yet without the help of strategy, they are so fragile, they can be so easily distorted and abused in this life, they can be so unhappy.

The Right is the Great Creative Force

It's one of the tragedies of the advent of the nine-centered being, how long it has taken since 1781 to get to 1987, and finally get to the point where this information actually became available. It's only now that there is this possibility to really be able to do something of benefit for those Right beings. It all leads back to the same thing. To be in the world, to be in the world with correctness so that those beings you meet, you meet in a way that is absolutely correct, who they are, and where you are with them.

Then what is released from you, this is where you get your reward in this life, by watching it emerge from you, the passenger consciousness that can watch the wonder of the Right Personality, can see it at work, can just shake its illusionary head in wonder as it comes out, because every Right being knows the miracle of that stuff coming out of you and you don't know where it comes from. You have no idea where it comes from. It is the beauty of Right-ness. This is the great creative force.

So, in the end, like in the beginning, it is Strategy and Authority. And most extraordinary for the deepest Right-ness, it is the most profound alignment. It frees you. It gives you a way to be able to compete in this crazy world, to be able to find your place, and to be able to find those who are going to deeply appreciate who you are as a being. It is something that is so special. Something that is so correct is for the Right to finally be able to achieve the balance necessary in this grid, to bring wholeness to this whole phenomenon.

Well, it's been quite a journey. I'm really glad that all of you participated in this. It's going to be interesting in the next semester. I'm doing a five-week program for Right beings, with Right-ness being anyone who has at least the Right Personality, who's on this side of the grid. [The workshop called "Being Right" was held Fall 2009.] What I hope to be able to do is give you guidance on how to perfect what is your unique, creative potential as a Right being, both in the way in which I plan on teaching or sharing the program, and in the practical tools that I hope will be deeply helpful.

Right-ness to me is the magic of the future, but it's also the magic of now. And we need it. Just as one of the soldiers, it was a wonderful story. He noticed something that nobody else noticed and he saved seven people's lives; the wonder that that power is there. This is what Right-ness is all about; being able to tap into the unseen, having this extraordinary depth, this vast, vast receptive, peripheral, passive, observed wonder that is there, all of this observer wonder that is there. It's an incredible thing. And of course it's time for it to take its place and to take its place in healthy human beings. And this is what the knowledge brings.

So, to all of you, follow your Strategy and Authority. And thanks for being my last class of the academic year. I hope all of you have a good summer. And we'll see you again next time, wherever that may be. So, to all of you, you take care, bye for now.
